PLAY INDIAN MUSIC IN FLIGHTS, AIRPORTS: AVIATION MINISTRY

The ministry's direction to airlines and airport operators comes after ICCR's request to promote Indian music in Indian flights

'MOST GLOBAL AIRLINES PLAY DOMESTIC MUSIC'

In its letter to all airlines and airports asking them to consider playing Indian music in their flights and terminal premises, the civil aviation ministry noted that music played by most airlines across the globe is invariably that of the parent country of the airline. For example, Jazz in an American airline or Mozart in an Austrian airline, and Arab music in an airline from West Asia

'INDIAN PLANES RARELY PLAY DESI SONGS'

- "Indian airlines seldom play Indian music in the flight, whereas, our music has a rich heritage and culture... Owing to India's vastness and diversity, Indian music encompasses numerous genres in multiple varieties and forms, which include classical music, folk, light vocal, instrumental music," the ministry noted

Insurer can't deny claim citing existing illness: SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

NO insurance company can refuse a mediclaim citing a medical condition that the policyholder disclosed while signing up for the policy, the Supreme Court has ruled. A bench of justices D Y Chandrachud and B V Nagarathna has also said that the policyholder has to disclose to the insurer all material facts within his or her knowledge, adding that the buyer is presumed to know all the facts and circumstances concerning the insurance.

While policyholders can only disclose what is known to them, their duty is not confined to their actual knowledge but extends to those material facts which, in the ordinary course of business, they ought to know, the apex court said.

"Once the policy has been issued after assessing the medical condition of the insured, the insurer cannot repudiate the claim by citing an existing medical condition, which was disclosed by the insured in the proposal form and which condition has led to a particular risk in respect of which the claim has been made by the insured," said the bench in a recent judgment. The verdict came during an appeal filed by one Manmohan Nanda against an order of the National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission (NCDRC) rejecting his plea seeking a claim for medical expenses incurred in the US.

Nanda had bought an overseas mediclaim business and holiday policy from the United India Insurance Company as he intended to travel to the US. Upon reaching the San Francisco airport, he suffered a heart attack and was admitted to a hospital. Subsequently, an angioplasty was performed on him and three stents were inserted to remove the blockage from heart vessels. In his petition, he said his claims for treatment expenses were repudiated by the insurer stating that the appellant had a history of hyperlipidaemia (high cholesterol) and diabetes, which was not disclosed while buying the insurance policy.

The NCDRC had ruled that since the complainant had been under statin medication, which was not disclosed while buying the mediclaim policy, he failed to comply with his duty to fully disclose his health conditions.

The SC, however, said the repudiation of the claim by United India Insurance Company was not in accordance with law.

It said the object of buying a mediclaim policy is to seek indemnification in respect of a sudden illness or sickness that is not expected or imminent and that may occur overseas.

Clause on comorbid 60-plus producing doctor's certificate at vax centre for booster dose dropped

2 more vaccines and a pill added to combat Covid

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @ New Delhi

AS India prepares to deal with the surge in Covid-19 infections with booster vaccine doses amid anxiety over the highly infectious Omicron variant, it has added three more tools — two vaccines and a drug — to its armour.

The Drug Controller General of India on Tuesday gave emergency use authorisation (EUA) to Covid vaccines Covovax and Corbevax, apart from Covid drug molnupiravir, which will be manufactured by 13 companies locally. The approvals came within hours of the subject expert committee on Covid-19 of the Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation recommending EUA for them.

Parallelly, the Centre ended a hassle of furnishing a medical certificate for the 60-plus with comorbidities for taking the booster shot, by dropping the clause. It means all senior citizens with comorbidities are eligible for what the Centre calls is a precautionary jab.

Of the vaccines approved on Tuesday, Corbevax has been made by Hyderabad-based Biological E. Covovax is the Indian version of Novavax. (see box)

Molnupiravir is meant for restricted use for treating adult patients with blood oxygen levels at 93% and having a high-risk of progression of the infection, including hospitalisation or death. It should be taken twice a day for not more than five days.

Biological E conducted phase 1, 2 and 3 clinical trials of Corbevax in the country, apart from a phase 3 active comparator clinical trial to evaluate superiority against Covishield, the Centre informed. However, data from none of these clinical trials have yet been released in the public domain.

The Union health ministry said Covovax had shown efficacy of 90.4% and 86.9% respectively in the US and UK during phase 3 trials. It added that SII conducted phase 2/3 immuno-bridging clinical trails in the country for comparing safety and immunogenicity of this vaccine.

On molnupiravir, the regulator received applications from 22 manufacturers but approved only 13.

Clearing the air on comorbidities, Union health secretary Rajesh Bhsuhan wrote to states saying anyone over 60, on their doctor's advice, can now take the shot and will not be required to show the co-morbidity certificate at the vaccination centre. The letter comes after a section of people, including doctors, had protested the requirement of doctors' certificate. "When there is no provision of such a certificate in India's healthcare system to avail of any service, why create this hurdle?" said a senior medical professional at AIIMS, Delhi, who is a member of the ICMR advisory group on Covid-19 clinical management.

GOVT GRANTS VRS TO BHASKAR RAO

BALA CHAUHAN @ Bengaluru

FORMER Bengaluru police commissioner and Additional Director General of Police (ADGP) Bhaskar Rao will demit office on December 31 after the government approved his application for voluntary retirement. He will be relieved from service at the end of this month. Rao confirmed to TNIE that the government has cleared him for voluntary retirement.

On reports that he would enter politics after hanging up his boots, he said he has not made any such decision. "I would like to travel, teach and spend time with my family at my native place," he said.

An Indian Police Service (IPS) officer of 1990 batch, Rao had applied for voluntary retirement from service (VRS) in September this year. In his application, he had requested to be relieved immediately. His file was pending with the chief minister and it is only recently that the latter signed on it. With the superannuation of Rao, a second post of ADGP rank will fall vacant in the state. The post of ADG, Communications, Logistics & Modernisation is vacant. The post of Bengaluru police commissioner too is of ADGP rank.

Flight delay, traffic jam... CM gets taste of common man's woes, first hand

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

FOR the political top shot and Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, it was common man's problems that troubled him for the second day in a row on Tuesday. Bommai, who was to reach Hubballi -- which is an hour away by air, had to wait nearly four hours in Bengaluru despite booking a special, chartered flight.

Bommai and his team promptly reached the HAL Airport in time on Tuesday morning to take the flight, which was scheduled to take off at 9. But at the last minute, they were told that the flight had developed a snag. Another plane had to be arranged which caused the delay, sources from the Chief Minister's Office told The New Indian Express. "The alternative flight had to come from Mumbai and by the time the chief minister took off, it was nearly 1 pm," the sources added.

As he realised it would be a long wait, Bommai moved to a hotel close to the airport and attended the Infosys Foundation programme through video conference at 11 am. As per the original schedule, he was to reach Hubballi by 9.45 am and attend the event via video conference from there.

It was just on Monday that the chief minister was the victim of Bengaluru's infamous traffic gridlock as his envoy was caught in peak hour traffic because of a communication gaffe.

After inaugurating Krishi Bhavan-2 near Corporation Circle, Bommai was scheduled to go to National College Grounds in Basavanagudi to distribute compensation cheques to those who lost their family members to Covid. But a message was sent out to the security personnel that the chief minister was heading to his official residence. As the convoy proceeded, it was realised midway that the CM had to head to National College Grounds and the convoy tried to reroute. CONTINUED ON: P4

ENS @ Bengaluru

THE second PU exams, scheduled to be held in March, are likely to be postponed to the last week of April as portions are yet to be completed, Primary and Secondary Education Minister BC Nagesh told The New Indian Express on Tuesday.

The exams cannot be delayed beyond April, as it would affect the schedules of National Eligibility cum Entrance Test (NEET), Common Entrance Test and other entrance exams for students, Nagesh explained.

Till recently, the PU Department had maintained that the exams would be held as per schedule in March. But lecturers have complained that they have not completed the syllabi because of Covid restrictions.

A formal circular on the postponement is yet to be issued.

With night curfew commencing from Tuesday night, police officers carry out checks on commuters on Nrupatunga Road

Night curfew: Cops take over city roads

People hurry home before 10pm, police barricade roads, issue warnings, shut flyovers

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

AMID mounting displeasure by various sectors, particularly the hospitality sector, over the 7-hour restrictions imposed for 10 days, night curfew was enforced across the city at 10pm Tuesday.

As it neared the hour, citizens hurrying to catch the last transport home was a common sight. People waited outside pubs, bars and restaurants, to try and catch a cab or auto. Hospitals and pharmacies remained open, while other stores were shut by 9.30pm.

The city came to a standstill by 10.30pm, and roads wore a deserted look as policemen took over, sounding sirens and flashing beacons. The police had earlier made announcements using speakers, requesting people to stay indoors after 10pm. In some areas, shops were opened past 10pm, prompting police to warn the shopkeepers and down shutters. The police barricaded main roads and important junctions, and stopped commuters for checking.

Speaking to reporters earlier, Police Commissioner Kamal Pant appealed to the public not to come out of their houses during night curfew. "Policemen will be deployed across the city and patrolling will be intensified. No commercial activities will be allowed after 10pm."

He said that flyovers will be closed during night curfew in a day or two, and jurisdictional police will decide which flyovers were to be closed. "Vehicles will be seized and people will be booked if found violating the restrictions," he added.

He also said that there would be heavy police deployment at MG Road, Brigade Road, Koramangala and Indiranagar on December 31 night, and no public celebrations will be allowed. "We will be taking the assistance of BBMP staff to check whether restaurants are allowing only those guests who have taken both doses of vaccination".

Metro to run slow after SWD work exposes soil near pillar

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

STORM Water Drain silting works undertaken by the BBMP close to the Halasuru Metro station have exposed an exposure of soil around a pier,no. 109A, present near the Venkateshwara temple at Halasuru. As a precautionary measure, Metro trains between Indira Nagar and Halasuru, for a few days, will run on a restricted speed of 5 km/hr.

Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Limited, Managing Director, Anjum Parwez visited the spot on Tuesday morning to take stock of the impact on the pier. He said, "As a matter of caution we will be running trains on a speed of 5 km/hr along the stretch. Our piers run to a good depth below the ground and there is no danger to our structure. We have asked BBMP to strengthen the portion around the pier immediately with fast setting concrete that would be quicker." The speed restriction would be in place until the work is completed, probably three days, he added.

BMRCL (Operations & Maintenance) Executive Director A S Shankar said, "The Chief General Manager (Civil) and a team of experts assessed the spot and declared the pier safe."

Chief Public Relations Officer, B L Yashavanth Chavan said, "BBMP have put shutters around the place to pour concrete (M30). This will protect the pile cap and pile. Shuttering for shoring work is in progress at the site."

Medicos support Delhi docs, protest

KARNATAKA Association of Resident Doctors (KARD) have expressed solidarity with the doctor protests in Delhi on allegations of police brutality meted out to them. Calling it a black day in the history of the medical fraternity, KARD doctors held a candle light vigil in government medical colleges across the state at 6 pm on Tuesday.

The association decided to support fellow doctors and demanded to expedite NEET PG counselling.

"IMA Bengaluru branch strongly condemns the action of government agencies and police administration in the strongest possible words and stands committed for the rights of the medical fraternity," said Dr. Pradeep Kumar, honorary secretary, IMA Bengaluru branch.

BDA looks to allot sites at Karanth Layout by August 15 next year

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

THE Bangalore Development Authority (BDA) is accelerating work on Dr Shivaram Karanth Layout to ensure that sites are allotted on August 15, 2022. When completed, this will be the second biggest layout of the 58 developed by BDA.

A senior BDA official said, "Our deadline is quite ambitious. But we are keen on it, as it marks the Platinum Jubilee of India's Independence."

As per the original plan of 2008, 18,975 sites are to be readied on 3,546 acres and 12 guntas of land in 17 villages between Hesaraghatta and Doddaballapur hoblis. The draft plan for the layout is being fine tuned at present with 2 per cent of land earmarked for community amenity sites.

File picture of an illigal structure being razed at Sonashettyhalli in Oct

The High Court had cancelled the layout project on September 2, 2015 as landowners had filed numerous cases over the years. But BDA took the matter to the Supreme Court, which gave the green signal on August 3, 2018.

Giving details of the present status, another official said that nearly 2,500 acres of land have been acquired already. "The exact number of sites to be allotted is only a rough estimate as of now. We are keen on giving the public 10,000 sites and an equal number to those who parted with their land for the layout. In addition, another 4,000 sites would be given on priority to revenue site losers (those who had taken over sites illegally)," he said. The originally planned 18,975 sites could go up if bigger sites are split into smaller dimensions.

A senior officer said BDA is keen to issue tenders for layout formation within six months. "Works to draw electricity, water and sewage lines will be started simultaneously and we can begin allotments by mid-August. We are in the process of getting environmental clearance."

NH-4 bridge shut, rush for Metro

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

DUE to the closure of the flyover between Goraguntepalya and Nelamangala on Tumakuru Road on Saturday for repair works, the Nagasandra Metro station is witnessing a sharp increase in footfall. The Bengaluru Metro Rail Corporation Limited (BMRCL) opened the station's 'B' entry on Tuesday for the convenience of commuters.

The 'B' entry is located on the highway towards Bengaluru, while the 'A' entry is positioned towards the Tumakuru side. Long queues were seen on both the counters at the terminal station since Monday.

The busy 8-mile flyover was closed for the replacement of the rusted cable found during a routine inspection on December 26.

BMRCL (Operations and Maintenance) Executive Director M S Shankar said, "We have opened the 'B' entry which was closed so far and have installed an additional baggage scanner here. It has been done to minimise waiting time for the commuters."

There has been massive traffic jams on the Tumakuru Road following the flyover closure. "To avoid jams, public might be opting over to use Metro," he said.

Asked about introducing additional trips, Shankar said, "We have sufficient space in the trains to manage the increase in traffic."

A traffic official at Peenya said traffic flow was quite high between Gorguntaplaya and Madavara. The switch to public transportation mode like Metro by the public is good, the official added.

Omicron spreads fast, but symptoms mild

No signs of breathlessness and other severe complications; Caseload not high enough to track trend, say doctors

RANJANI MADHAVAN
@ Bengaluru

AMIDST the panic created by Omicron, people may find solace in the fact that among the few cases reported in Bengaluru, patients are showing only mild symptoms so far. While it may be too soon to make a generalisation, disease presentation until now has not been severe, say city doctors.

Sakra World Hospital has seen four patients with Omicron, of whom two have already been discharged. The symptoms were mild with patients reporting sore throat, body pain, headache, mild fever, much like a common flu, said Dr Raghu J, Senior Consultant - Internal Medicine and Infectious Disease Specialist at Sakra. Only one patient, a senior citizen, reported 6 per cent lung involvement.

"Omicron appears to be spreading faster than Delta by three to four times, but the severity of the disease appears to be higher in Delta, which needed ventilator, hospitalisation and ICU care. Delta symptoms included breathlessness and other complications. With Omicron, even patients who are asymptomatic have been admitted to hospital just to isolate, after testing positive at the airport," Dr Raghu said, adding that treatment has been the same as what was followed earlier during the pandemic. Patients are treated symptomatically with Vitamin C, paracetamol, cough syrup, etc.

ANOTHER OMICRON CASE IN MYSURU

MYSURU: After a nine-year-old girl tested positive for the Omicron variant of the coronavirus, now a foreign student studying in Mysuru has tested positive. Though health officials are tight-lipped about the matter, sources said that a girl from Tanzania pursuing a degree course in the city tested positive for the Omicron variant, taking the total tally of such cases in the state to 39. The girl, who arrived on December 20, had given her samples for testing and had tested positive, following which the samples were sent for genome sequencing, which confirmed the presence of the new variant. Following this, the officials are tracing primary and secondary contacts of the infected patient to make them undergo testing. ENS

Cases of Omicron are not high enough to identify a trend, and only once the caseload is more will we know the disease presentation, said Dr Shashikumar S, Physician and Intensivist, Suguna Hospital, which has seen a few patients with Omicron.

"Patients have either been asymptomatic or have shown symptoms of sore throat, body pain and cough. With the Delta variant, people presented with high fever, cytokine storm, lung involvement, etc. As the virus is SARS-CoV-2, treatment is the same. We are yet to receive any moderate to severe cases requiring more care," Dr Shashikumar said.

At another hospital in Bengaluru, an antibody cocktail (Casirivimab and Imdevima) has been administered to patients with Omicron, who report in the first five days of the disease and are at high risk of progression to severe disease. "Symptoms are mild and patients are recovering with the help of the antibody cocktail. With Delta, we saw other symptoms such as oxygen requirement and blood clotting," a doctor said.

So far, 39 cases of Omicron have been reported in Karnataka, a majority of which are in Bengaluru.

MISSION 150: BJP SETS COURSE FOR 2023 POLLS

Tells partymen to begin groundwork, reach out, connect with people

ARUNKUMAR HURALIMATH & MALLIKARJUN HIREMATH
@ Hubballi

SENIOR leaders and members of the BJP, who gathered for the party's state executive committe meeting here on Tuesday, have set 'Mission 150' as the main agenda for the ruling party to return to power, after the 2023 Assembly polls.

Accordingly, the upcoming polls and the roadmap to achieve the target of winning at least 150 seats, are the major topics of discussion at the two-day meeting at a hotel in Hubballi.

The meeting was chaired by BJP national general secretary and Karnataka in-charge Arun Singh, and attended by Union minister Pralhad Joshi, BJP state president Nalin Kumar Kateel, and Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, among others. The leaders told the members to begin work at the ground-level to achieve the set target, while also focusing on the upcoming Taluk Panchayat and Zilla Panchayat elections, which would further help the party get a good number of votes en route to the Assembly contest.

To herald some changes in the administration, it is learnt that the cabinet is likely to be reshuffled soon, which is aimed at the party gaining people's confidence. The leaders also directed the party and government to work together to reach out to the masses.

According to sources, the BJP's failure in the recent by-polls and MLC elections was also discussed, with some leaders suggesting a few changes that could help the party gain people's support and their votes too. Also, various issues like party activities, voter outreach, motivating party workers and valuation, and self-introspection, were looked into.

Meanwhile, Mahantesh Kavatagimath, who lost the recent Council polls, attended the meeting and allegedly complained to Arun Singh against Ramesh Jarkiholi and his brothers for being the reason for his loss in the election, confirmed sources.

It may be recalled that BJP national chief J P Nadda was supposed to attend the meeting, but did not owing to Covid-19 guidelines imposed by the State Government here.

The day also saw an array of photo exhibitions, cultural programmes and other events.

Bringing BJP to power once again in the 2023 election is my aim. Preparations will begin in this regard

'Siddu a daydreamer, won't be CM in '23'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

CALLING former chief minister Siddaramaiah a "daydreamer", Energy Minister V Sunil Kumar on Tuesday said he is giving statements on various issues, presuming he will become chief minister after the 2023 assembly elections.

"The BJP will come back to power with an absolute majority under the leadership of Basavaraj Bommai," he told reporters.

"Siddaramaiah is giving statements that in 2023, his government will repeal the anti-conversion bill, anti-cow slaughter law, and restart Tipu Jayanti celebrations. The people are closely watching Siddaramaiah and will give a fitting reply to Congress."

The BJP is adhering to its 2018 manifesto, and the government introduced the anti-conversion bill as it is needed for a large section of society, he added.

Explaining the bill, he said it prevents forcible conversions by luring poor people belonging to marginal communities and those who convert will have to follow certain legal procedures. Siddaramaiah has failed to understand the importance of the bill, Kumar said.

"His statement to repeal the anti-conversion bill will send wrong signals to society and put undue pressure on the government to change its stand, but we are firm," he said.

No room for hooliganism

Kumar said the government will not tolerate hooliganism by the Maharashtra Ekikarana Samithi (MES) in Belagavi, and is committed to protect the language and culture of the land. When the government has taken stringent measures against hooligans, what is the need for Karnataka bandh, he asked.

Reiterating that the 2023 polls will be fought under Bommai, he said his leadership had been approved by Home Minister Amit Shah, and again at the Hubballi meeting by BJP Karnataka in-charge general secretary Arun Singh.

Ravi questions govt's night curfew decision

BJP national general secretary CT Ravi is unhappy with the State Government's sudden decision to impose night curfew, fearing the outbreak of the Omicron variant. Ravi said he could not say whether his own government's order is right or wrong, and added that virologists themselves have said there is no need to fear the new variant. "At present, life has returned to normal for people. That being the case, there is no need for the government to instill fear in the minds of the people," the senior BJP leader maintained.

BSY in Dubai, misses executive meet

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

THE most conspicuous absentee at the BJP state executive meeting was former chief minister B S Yediyurappa, who is currently in Dubai. Although senior party leaders like General Secretary Arun Singh expressed optimism about Yediyurappa's participation in the meet, his absence was surprising.

Yediyurappa was seen at Dubai Expo 2020 on Tuesday, where he showed special interest in the India Pavilion and its presentations. He later tweeted, "The desire for an open environment, opportunities and growth is most clearly reflected..."

Sources said Yediyurappa was accompanied by his son, Shivamogga MP B Y Raghavendra and other family members. The family left for Dubai on December 24, on the invitation of the Kannada Sangha, and Yediyurappa was scheduled to participate in a string of programmes.

On his absence at the state executive, sources close to him said his travel plans to Dubai had been fixed in advance, and would have been difficult to cancel. He had informed the party earlier.

Analysts say the absence of a senior leader like Yediyurappa at the state executive meet does not augur well for the party, which will face assembly polls in about 15 months.

Morning traffic hits CM's convoy

BUT it was late by then, and the chief minister's long motorcade was caught in the morning traffic on Nrupatunga Road.

The traffic police, who had no clue about the movement of chief minister's convoy, jumped in to control the situation, blocked traffic from other roads and managed to get the motorcade out of the busy stretch. From Corporation Circle, the traffic police succeeded in keeping roads clear of traffic and Bommai reached National College Grounds half-an-hour behind schedule.

I've energy to work 365 days: Bommai

ARUNKUMAR HURALIMATH
@ Hubballi

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Tuesday said he has the energy and inspiration to work tirelessly without rest through all 365 days of the year, with the ruling BJP warning its leaders against speaking of any leadership change in the state.

At the core committee meeting here on Tuesday, a warning was sent among party leaders or members of strict action, if they speak about any leadership change. With this, the national leaders have given a clear message that the leadership will is not changing.

Recent comments by some ministers of the Bommai cabinet triggered rumours of a change in leadership here. Apart from Opposition parties, Bommai's health was indirectly questioned even by BJP's own MLAs. With only one-and-a-half years left for the Assembly election, the national leaders have affirmed that Bommai is doing a good job in the state. BJP national general secretary Arun Singh and Union minister Pralhad Joshi also expressed the same, while appreciating the CM and stating that the elections will be fought under his leadership.

Earlier, speaking to reporters at the Hubballi Airport, Bommai said, "I have enough energy to work all 365 days without taking rest, and I have been working 15 hours every day. Bringing BJP to power once again in the 2023 election is my aim. Preparations will begin in this regard."

Spokesperson P Rajeev said the CM's decision of giving relief for crop loss, passing Bills -- including the anti-conversion Bill and anti-cow slaughter Bill, and other contributions were appreciated during the meet.

No sign of Jarkiholi, Nirani

The absence of former CM B S Yediyurappa and his sons; Ramesh Jarkiholi and his brother; and minister Murugesh Nirani was conspicuous. It was expected that a total of 300 delegates would take part in the BJP state executive committee meeting in Hubballi, of whom 281 participated. MEKEDATU ROW

People must prevail on govt for project: Cong

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

THE Congress, which is enthused with its impressive performance in the recent Council polls, has stepped up its attack against the BJP, alleging that democracy has taken a beating under PM Narendra Modi's rule.

Observing the grand old party's foundation day at Shivapura in Maddur taluk on Tuesday, Congress leaders expressed apprehension that there was no safety for judges, nor did the BJP have respect for the Judiciary or public opinion.

KPCC president DK Shivakumar claimed that the Congress, instead of sitting with folded hands during the pandemic, went out to help people. Turning his attention to the Mekedatu padayatra, Shivakumar said the people should join hands like the Freedom Struggle, to prevail on the government to launch the project. He said that Congress has prepared the DPR and sought permission from the Centre. Shivakumar added that the padayatra to Mekedatu in January will be a historic movement that will bring about an anti-government stance in people.

Meanwhile, former Union minister M Veerappa Moily charged that Modi had no moral right to tweet about nationalism. He appealed to Congressmen to become 'Satyagrahis' to save the nation.

Padayatra a gimmick: Revanna

The padayatra by Congress leaders demanding the Mekedatu project has been termed as a political gimmick by JDS leader and former minister HD Revanna. He charged that the Congress is trying to grab political advantage by raising unwanted issues. Revanna suggested that it would be better if the CM led a delegation of all-party leaders to the Centre, demanding the Mekedatu project.

SIDDU CALLS FOR 'BJP HATAO', SAYS MODI RUINED ECONOMY

ENS @ Mysuru

OPPOSITION leader Siddaramaiah on Tuesday launched a 'BJP Hatao' campaign, calling on Congressmen to educate the masses to analyse the history of the Congress and BJP, and the parties' contribution to the country. He said that former PM Indira Gandhi opened banks for the poor but the BJP wants to close them, and the party also took "hasty decisions like demonetisation and introduction of GST, that had the worst impact on the country's economy".

Addressing Congressmen at the Congress Foundation Day here, he said that Prime Minister Narendra Modi's anti-people policies have led to an increase in unemployment, poverty, price rise and skyrocketing prices of petrol and diesel. He accused the Union government of wanting to bring in farm laws which could destroy the farming community.

Recalling that Karnataka was hit with four consecutive floods in 2021, he said the government has not paid relief but has come out with advertisements making tall claims. "The Congress ideology is pro-people, whereas the RSS is anti-people and has an agenda to oppose the Constitution and nurture inequality," he said, adding that the RSS did not contribute to the freedom struggle was now teaching "patriotism and history".

Alleging that Modi had questioned the Congress' contribution, he hailed PM Manmohan Singh for bringing in the National Employment Guarantee Scheme, and Right to Education.

Global warming at doorstep, we need planning with climate lens

DR INDU K MURTHY
Sector Head - Climate, Environment, and Sustainability Centre for Study of Science, Technology and Policy (CSTEP), a research-based think tank

LOOKING AHEAD 2022 LOOKING BACK

THIS has been a year of extremes, with Covid-19 striking a blow right in the beginning and adversely impacting lives and livelihoods of people, and the economy at large. While governments and the people alike were battling the pandemic, extreme weather events such as heat waves, fires, floods and landslides have battered nations and regions around the world. India had its share of extreme weather events, and Karnataka is no exception.

Karnataka experienced floods this year — the fourth consecutive year since 2018. In the past decade, Karnataka has also experienced drought conditions. In between these two bookends, projections of temperature and rainfall for Karnataka indicate a warming of 0.5 degree Celsius to 2 degree Celsius, an increase in rainfall by about 5 per cent to 25 per cent, and a further increase in the frequency and magnitude of heavy rainfall events of >50 mm/day, even by the 2030s, compared to the past 30 years. While increasing climate-related disasters are because of global climate change, the risks, impacts and losses are amplified at the local level because of the inadequacy of current policies, programmes and infrastructure. Mindless development, particularly in eco-sensitive regions and urban planning that ignores nature, have exacerbated the risks of climate change.

A 'Green Index' developed in March 2020 as a composite measure of the environmental performance of government programmes in Karnataka clearly demonstrates that development and climate action could be achieved synergistically. This index composed of parameters spanning energy efficiency and renewable energy; water conservation and recycling; waste treatment and recycling; air pollution control; biodiversity conservation; carbon dioxide emission reduction or sequestration, and adaptation to climate as also those that can deliver climate mitigation and adaptation benefits, while protecting the environment.

While reversing climate change is not possible, Karnataka, which is increasingly experiencing both floods and droughts, and other forms of disasters such as hailstorms, heat waves and thunderstorms, should add a climate lens to planning, formulating, screening and implementing all its programmes, schemes and projects. A shift in thinking that climate action is an additional burden that derails development would emerge if a state government policy that mandates integration of climate information into existing as well as future programmes and projects is formulated.

The Chief Minister announced in September 2021 that Karnataka will have a 'green budget'. This requires adoption of an index such as the 'Green Index' and expanding its scope to ensure departments provide a roadmap for green transition. This index could become a metric against which funding to various government departments is determined.

While mitigation is global, adaptation is local. Till date, much of the planning and implementation of projects is based on historical data. However, extreme weather events are becoming the new normal. This requires mapping of climate hazard, exposure and vulnerability at district or lower scales, and improved early warning and social protection mechanisms. Such targeted actions aimed at building resilience of systems and communities, climate-proofing assets and investments, conserving the environment, transitioning to low-carbon pathways will make Karnataka a climate resilient state, while contributing to national goals and targets such as the Nationally Determined Contribution and Net Zero targets, and ultimately, Sustainable Development Goals.

TN minister for New Year fete at home, no curbs yet

State reports 11 more Omicron cases on Tuesday, total now 45

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Chennai

TAMIL Nadu on Tuesday reported 11 more Omicron cases, taking the total number of cases caused by the highly-transmissible variant of SARS-CoV-2 in the State to 45. Two of these cases were cross-notified to Kerala and Puducherry.

In this context, Health Minister Ma Subramanian requested hotels, resorts and other places to avoid hosting events over December 31 and January 1. He urged members of the public to ring in the New Year at home with families. However, hotels and resorts have already started preparations for New Year celebrations as, unlike some other States, TN is yet to impose any restrictions for that weekend.

Of the 11 newly-reported Omicron cases, seven are from Chennai, while one each is from Chengalpattu, Tiruvarur and Kanniyakumari districts. One case was cross-notified to Puducherry, according to the media bulletin issued by the Directorate of Public Health.

Out of the total 45 cases, 42 are related to international travellers while the source of infection for three other cases has yet to be traced. However, 118 people have tested positive for Covid-19 with their samples showing an 'S' gene drop, which is a marker for Omicron. The State has so far tested 20,534 international travellers.

After cross-notifying two cases to Kerala and Puducherry, the State had 19 active cases, the rest having been discharged. The State had earlier confirmed 34 Omicron cases after results of whole genome sequencing were shared by the National Institute of Virology, Pune.

Speaking to reporters at the Egmore Eye Hospital, the minister said the State is yet to receive whole genome sequencing reports of most 'S' gene drop cases. In Rajiv Gandhi Government General Hospital, 51 people, including nurses and doctors, tested positive with 'S' gene drop after performing surgery on a diabetic patient. Sequencing report on these samples is awaited, he added.

Dhaba worker burnt alive over settling bill

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

IN a horrific incident, a 29-year-old staffer at a dhaba on the outskirts of Bengaluru was burnt alive by members of a gang after he asked them to settle their bill. The gang also set the dhaba on fire. The staffer, who had suffered severe burns, died on Tuesday.

The incident occurred at U-Turn Dhaba on Nelamangala Highway near Hesaraghatta Main Road on Friday, the police said.

The victim, Manoj, who hailed from Hassan and was staying at a village nearby, was working as a supplier at the dhaba. The gang arrived at the eatout around 10 pm, ordered food and started consuming alcohol. They hung around after dinner and did not leave, even though the dhaba staff told them it was closing time. The gang also refused to pay the bill. When Manoj confronted the gang members, they got a bottle of petrol from bikes parked outside and poured it over the dhaba and Manoj. Even before the other staff members could react, they lit fire to the place and ran away.

As Manoj started screaming for help, his colleague Tejas and two others put out the fire around him, and rushed him to hospital. They later alerted Soladevanahalli police. Based on the victim's statement, the police had registered a case against unknown persons under Sections 436 (mischief by fire or explosive substance with intent to destroy house) and 307 (attempt to murder). Manoj's death, the police have added murder charges and started hunting for the accused.Gang burns dhaba worker alive

TWO REAL ESTATE STAFF ARRESTED BY ACB

Bengaluru: Two employees of a real estate firm were trapped by sleuths of the Anti-Corruption Bureau (ACB) for collecting a bribe from a home buyer, purportedly to be distributed to officers and staff of the Anekal sub-registrar's office. This is said to be one of the rare cases in which private firm employees were arrested on charges of graft. The arrested are Shirisha, customer relationship manager, and Bharat, coordinator. An ACB official said a resident of Ganganagar had purchased a flat at an apartment complex constructed by the real estate firm in Anekal. Shirisha had allegedly demanded that he pay Rs 25,000, claiming that she has to bribe the officers and staff of the sub-registrar's office to get the property registered and for other works. "The home buyer had filed a complaint and Bharat was trapped while accepting the bribe from the complainant. He was arrested and Shirisha was arrested later," the officer added. ENS

Parents flee after death of newborn girl in Madurai

MADURAI: A couple has gone absconding from Periyakatalai in Peraiyur along with their two daughters after coming under suspicion of killing their third daughter six days after she was born.

According to a senior health officer, Kowsalya gave birth to a healthly girl on December 21. Former directors, activists and Congress leaders stage a protest demanding the ouster of the Rangayana director in Mysuru on Tuesday | EXPRESS

In Rangayana stir, politics takes the centrestage

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Mysuru

THE 'Save Rangayana' campaign has turned political. While the Congress leaders extended support to the protesters demanding removal of Addanda Cariappa from the director's post, BJP functionaries are backing those in support of the latter.

An indefinite protest launched by like-minded people consisting of theatre artistes, former Rangayana directors, progressive thinkers, Kannada activists and others under the banner 'Rangayana Ulisi samithi' entered ninth day on Tuesday. The agitators are demanding that the government oust Addanda Cariappa from the post of director alleging him of setting 'right' w ing and RSS narrative in Rangayana.

While police had denied permission for the agitators to continue protest in front of Rangayana, the agitators took a protest rally from a few metres away and later staged a protest near the venue.

Interestingly, on Tuesday the protest got support from Congress leader and former MLA M K Somashekhar who joined the protesters. He said that he is even ready to get arrested if agitators are not allowed to protest against the 'communal' attitude of Addanda Cariappa who is trying to set right wing ideology in this cultural institute.

The agitators said that MLA Tanveer Sait would also join the protest from Wednesday and had extended his support to it. While a protest was going on against Rangayana director Cariappa, a similar protest in favour of Cariappa and against the activists was held in front of the deputy commissioner's office.

Members of Kodava Samaja, Mysore Rakshana Vedike gathered in large numbers and alleged that several people with vested interests were targeting Cariappa and claimed that his contribution to the theatre field especially that of Kodava theatre was immense.

Several BJP leaders, including corporators Subbaiah, Hotel Owners Association president C Narayanagowda and others, took part in the protest.

Girls kill mother's attacker, surrender

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Kalpetta

TWO minor girls on Tuesday surrendered before the police at Ambalavayal in Wayanad, saying they killed a 68-year-old man — their relative — who tried to assault their mother. Based on the girls' statements, the police recovered the body of Muhammad Koya M, a native of Aayiramkolli at Ambalavayal, from a well. The body was found in a sack. The police, who have detained the girls, have taken mother into custody.

Muhammad is the husband of girls' paternal aunt. The girls — studying in classes X and XI — and their mother and Muhammad's family have been living in the same house, but in different portions.

"As per the statements of children, Muhammad tried to attack their mother around 11.30am. On seeing this, the girls tried to stop him. They hacked Muhammad's head with an axe. The police recovered the body after the girls surrendered," said Sobin K, sub-inspector, Ambalavayal.

"Muhammad has three wives and he was staying with his third wife at Ayiramkolli. The girls and mother are also living in the same house. Their living condition is bad, we can't call it a house. It's a shed. Their mother is also not well. She had a surgery recently. Neighbours said the girls had been facing problems from Muhammad and they might have committed the crime after suffering for long," said Hafsath Kunnakkadan, Ambalavayal panchayat president.

iii. To determine the revised Cross Subsidy Surcharge and Additional Surcharge for the financial year FY23 with reference to the proposed Annual Revenue Requirement.

TIMELY IPO REFORMS, BUT VOLATILITY NEVER FAR AWAY

Initial public offerings (IPOs) were featured prominently in 2021 and with the momentum likely extending into the new year, markets regulator SEBI wised up, announcing the much-needed IPO reforms. On Tuesday, it extended the lock-in period for anchor investors to 90 days from the current 30, but it applies for only 50% of the portion allocated to them. The move comes shortly after instances where some high-profile listings like Zomato, and One97 Communications (Paytm parent entity), slipped 9% and 13% respectively soon after the 30-day lock-in period ended. In this backdrop, Tuesday's announcements are timely. SEBI also changed regulations pertaining to issue of capital and disclosure requirements, besides tightening rules for the utilisation of IPO proceeds.

The current year saw companies raising a record ₹1.18 lakh crore—more than the previous two years combined. If the previous two years saw over 31 IPOs, this year they more than doubled to 63, notwithstanding the gloom due to the second wave of Covid-19 and the subsequent hit on the economy. As foreign and domestic investors pumped money, equities emerged as the best-performing asset class of the year, while gains from the Indian stock markets outpaced emerging markets. If in 2020, the Sensex and the Nifty rallied 15.75% and 14.90%, this year, it was 20%.

But will the rally continue in 2022? Typically, the initial months are sanguine due to anticipation surrounding the Union Budget proposals followed by the corporate earnings season. Besides, there's a strong pipeline for IPOs already with over 15 companies in various stages of going public and more could follow. Perhaps, investors are gearing up for the largest IPO in the history of Indian capital markets—LIC India. But 2022 could well be ropy with inflation turning persistent, and if Omicron virus variant turns deadly. As it is, foreign investors dumped $1.7 billion in December—the third consecutive month of foreign fund outflows just as the US Federal Reserve began tapering and voting in favour of at least one interest rate hike in 2022. In sum, volatility is never far away for markets and investors must exercise due caution.

TIME FOR NADA TO TEST MORE ATHLETES

Doping has always been an unwanted menace for India. It had time and again caused embarrassment for the country. It reared its head once again. On December 20, the World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA) published its Anti-Doping Rule Violations Report (ADRV) for 2019 and India was in the top three with 152 cases, behind Russia (167) and Italy (157). If this was not enough, on December 22, when the WADA released its Testing Figures Report, India was among the top 2 with 55 Adverse Analytical Findings (AAFs) behind the US's 136. What seemed shocking is that India's positive rate was at 4.6% to America's 1.8%. In this backdrop, when WADA announced on December 23 that India's National Dope Testing Laboratory had got its accreditation back after almost two-and-a-half years, there was a collective sigh of relief, especially in the sports ministry. The laboratory was suspended in August 2019 over around 47 'non-conformities'. So desperate was the ministry to get the accreditation back that it made a contribution of $1 million to the WADA for research and development.

The challenge, however, will be now. The lifting of sanctions would help the National Anti-Doping Agency (NADA) to collect more samples for testing without thinking much about the budget. The NADA had to send samples abroad, which involved costs for transportation and testing. Interestingly, as per 2020 testing figures, India had collected just 1,186 urine and blood samples. With fewer competitions and national camps, it is understandable. In 2019, it had collected over 4,000. With the Asian and Commonwealth Games next year, India must start robust testing of athletes, especially from elite sports like athletics, weightlifting, wrestling and boxing, not in non-Olympic sports like bodybuilding or powerlifting. It will be a complete waste of resources and money if NADA doesn't concentrate more on elite sports. Getting accreditation back is good, but revamping the collection will be an ideal way going forward.

With the change in the geopolitical situation involving the Sino-Indian standoff and the events in Afghanistan, Pakistan has obviously sensed an opportunity to destabilise New Delhi

PAK'S OBSESSION CONTINUES FROM J&K TO PUNJAB

LT GEN SYED ATA HASNAIN (RETD)

Former Commander, Srinagar-based 15 Corps. Now Chancellor, Central University of Kashmir

SOUMYADIP SINHA

Proxy hybrid conflict is a part of Pakistan's overall war fighting doctrine. From the time it was involved in Afghanistan against the Soviet invasion in the 80s, as also in the Indian state of Punjab in the same decade, Pakistan has experimented with different modes of hybridity in low-intensity conflict. The same extended into Jammu & Kashmir (J&K) in 1989-90, when Pakistan perceived an opportunity that could be exploited. In order to do that, Pakistan's deep state, which handles its security- and finance-related policy, progressively pulled out from the activities it was sponsoring in Punjab to focus on the new front in J&K. Probably handling both Punjab and J&K through proxy elements was beyond Pakistan's capability, especially since Afghanistan too had not fully stabilised and civil war was still rife. For the next 30 years, Pakistan pursued proxy hybrid conflict in J&K, first in the entire state and then primarily within Kashmir. The policy of pursuing a doctrine of imposing a thousand cuts on India by exploiting its multiple fault lines could continue but only up to a point. In recent years, India successfully contained Pakistan's nuisance capability through a policy of credible response to acts clearly crossing the limits of New Delhi's tolerance. It also reduced Pakistan's infiltration and hinterland interference through continuous counter-infiltration and counter-terror operations. After the 5 August 2019 constitutional decision and the effective crackdown on terrorist capability, Pakistan has been on the back foot, but the steadily improving situation and emerging stability is not something it wishes to see perpetuated. Clearly hamstrung for options, two factors have come to its rescue. First is the Chinese coercion of India in Ladakh and second the sudden turnaround in the situation in Afghanistan.

China's entry into the South Asian security environment by attempts to coerce India at the borders is clearly with the purpose of denting Indian strategic confidence that has been on the rise under Prime Minister Narendra Modi. For Pakistan, this is a virtual gift from China; a perceived guarantee that under Chinese threat India will no longer be able to respond to acts of crossing the rubicon by Pakistan. With the situation in Afghanistan also apparently shifting to Pakistan's favour and the deep state providing guidance to China in the handling of the latter's multiple interests, there appears a perception that the overall situation in South Asia is also beneficial to Islamabad. As such, Pakistan feels confident in taking greater risk to re-engage with India in proxy hybrid conflict that can spread beyond J&K, something it was earlier reluctant to do, with the natural expansion area being the Indian state of Punjab. The advantages of choosing Punjab are manifold. There exists the earlier experience of over 10 years (1980–92) of cultivating unrest there. Thereafter too, many of the networks have continued clandestinely, perhaps with the existence of some sleeper agents. To keep the state away from normalcy, deliberate efforts to spread the narcotics conduits and force Punjab's youth into the ways of life under drugs have been ardently made. The help of criminal networks, foreign funds and Canada- and UK-based Sikh separatists has been garnered for all these nefarious activities. In recent times, efforts to build caches of contraband weapons and explosives have been going on in the border areas with the help of trans-border flights of drones.

With the change in the geopolitical situation involving the Sino-Indian standoff, the events in Afghanistan and the apparent lack of interest by the US in affairs of South Asia, Pakistan has obviously sensed an opportunity, although a risky one. What are the ingredients that an adversary seeks to exploit and bring about instability and general chaos in the region it eyes? First and foremost is political uncertainty, so that decisions cannot be taken in time and no firm commitment towards ensuring security is displayed by the government. Second is the availability of resources both human and material, so that they can spread out and trigger chaos by blasts, shootings or kidnappings. Third is the effort to create divisiveness in society through rumours or acts of desecration, statements in the media and in public meetings. Fourth is the creation of networks—financial, media, narcotics and criminal—such that all activities can cease for some duration when the conditions are not conducive for terror activity and then revive at short notice. If one looks at the Punjab of today, a state about to go to elections, many of these ingredients are present. For Pakistan, low-level simmering activity in Kashmir, the spread of communal divisiveness and terror acts in Jammu and the creation of any form of instability in Punjab is a situation tailor-made for the promotion of its interests. It can attempt to keep one region highly active at a time and the others in low-key mode ready to be ignited when needed.

> The advantages of choosing Punjab are manifold for Pakistan. There exists the earlier experience of over 10 years (1980–92) of cultivating unrest there. Thereafter too, many of the networks have continued clandestinely, perhaps with the existence of some sleeper agents

Has India provided Pakistan the opportunities that the latter seeks? This is not true yet but Punjab in pre-election mode is veering towards that. Perhaps J&K and Punjab need to be seen as a seamless continuum. The region's police forces have done some excellent work in the past and that is what India should be relying upon for the future. Our intelligence services have gained tremendous experience in the last 20 years or so. The Army is available as backup and there is the institutional memory that the last time it was the people of Punjab who defeated separatism and all nefarious Pakistani designs. The only thing we need to be wary of is the politics of the states. J&K is under President's Rule and we do not know what the future holds after delimitation. As far as Punjab is concerned, it is unpredictable too. The state of politics being unstable is one factor that militates against the entire frontage. This is a time when political consensus is needed for the sake of security. This is very unlikely but a conscious effort to overcome the likely instability that may prevail here for some time must be sought. At the same time, taking the battle to the adversary must become the mantra. Defensive mode in this context would obviously not work to our advantage. We cannot afford to wait and let Pakistan do what it wishes to do. The battle has to be taken to the other side; soonest.

THE VEGETARIAN IN EVERY NON-VEGETARIAN

ANURADHA GOYAL

Author and founder of IndiTales

The Delhi High Court recently directed that all food businesses must explicitly specify every ingredient that goes into the food, to ensure that vegetarian dishes are indeed vegetarian. It emphasises that the consumers have the right to know if the ingredients originate from plants or animals, or if they are laboratory manufactured, irrespective of the quantity that goes into the final product. This essentially means that even a speck of animal product would need the label to be brown to indicate its non-vegetarian origins. Does this mean that today's green label is deceptive? It may not have perceivable chunks of meat but some ingredients may come from animal products not acceptable to most people like me, who religiously follow a vegetarian diet. As I read the High Court's verdict, many incidents from the past came flashing back to me.

I was on a media trip to Thailand. When our hosts realised that many of us were vegetarians, surviving on salads and banana fritters on most days, they very graciously organised a complete vegetarian formal dinner. A food critic on the trip was offended—how can you offer this to a critic. On the same trip, a fellow blogger said that how can a vegetarian be a food blogger or a critic? This was my introduction to the hierarchical position of non-vegetarian food in the food media circles. No wonder, our lifestyle magazines are full of non-veg foods, absolutely ignoring my favourite maxim—isn't everyone a vegetarian? We all consume plant-based food; in addition, you may also consume animal-based food. In India, it would be fair to say that even those who do consume non-vegetarian food, do not do so on a daily basis. A large number of people eat it occasionally, many consume it only outside their homes, or follow a vegetarian calendar like on Navaratri. So, if you look at the percentage of people who consume non-vegetarian food, it would be far less than that of non-vegetarians in the census.

At a global conference, a panel of the most celebrated Indian chefs discussed the business of food. When asked about the paucity of vegetarian dishes on the menu, they confessed that there is nothing called pure vegetarian food. They even cited a case of a chef who tried keeping the ladles used for vegetarian food separate and could not keep up. Since then, I have avoided eating at all kinds of fancy places that excel at making food look good, 'instaworthy' as they call it. But coming back to the Delhi High Court order—would it apply to the high-end hotels and kitchens of restaurants? If yes, how to ensure that the vessels used for vegetarian and non-vegetarian food are not used interchangeably? Are we going to put cameras in kitchens?

> Recently, at a high-end hotel, the buffet had a dish containing oyster sauce with a green label. When I asked the serving staff, he looked back and asked—Yeh vegetarian nahi hai kya? Is it not vegetarian? My head oscillated sideways and he very coolly said, 'Ok, I will ask someone to change the label'

Forget about restaurateurs being bad boys and intentionally serving non-veg to vegetarians, there is a huge gap in understanding the issue. Recently, at a high-end hotel in one of the most sacred cities of India, the lunch buffet had a dish containing oyster sauce with a green label on it. When I asked the serving staff about this, he looked back and asked—Yeh vegetarian nahi hai kya? Is it not vegetarian? My head oscillated sideways and he very coolly said, "Ok, I will ask someone to change the label." Then, I looked for safer options and moved on, but not without noticing that most of the serving staff has probably never tasted most of the presented dishes. Is this a training or a learning issue is another debate in my head. But as a vegetarian, it now tells me that you cannot blindly trust the staff.

Halal tourism was being promoted big time just before the pandemic stalled all travels. It always made me think, why have we seen no celebration of vegetarian food in India. We are largely vegetarian. If nothing else, we have the widest range of vegetarian cuisine in the world, be it our thalis, our deserts or our street food. Why are vegetarian food festivals not very popular in a country that is home to some of the largest vegetarian kitchens such as in temples like the Jagannath in Puri? I have seen vegetarian food festivals from Thailand to Canada. Moreover, Gandhi's 150th birth anniversary was celebrated across the world with vegetarian food but in India, we kind of ignored this. Vegan food festivals are coming up with missionary zeal but vegetarian ones are rarely heard. Don't you think there is space for celebration of vegetarian food that is not just universally consumed but has so much range to experience?

Look behind the media blitz, and you see that one of the most successful food businesses in India are the Udupi restaurants from the South and Vaishno Dhabas from the North that are now found on roadsides almost everywhere in the country. At the cost of repeating myself, everyone is a vegetarian and it is evident in the footfalls that pure vegetarian places receive. Even Italian chains that serve vegetarian only have lasted longer in India than others. Maybe it's time vegetarians assert their food choices with confidence.

A true inspiration

The story of Kajal Prajapati, the acid attack survivor who now intends to crack the civil services exam and join the IAS, demonstrates her grit and steeled determination to overcome adversities. Though her vision could be restored only in one eye, her firm resolve to go ahead with academic pursuits is laudable. This girl demonstrated to the world that "calamity is the touchstone of a brave mind". Kajal is really an inspiration to the student community.

Denounce hate speech

This is with reference to Baghel promises action against Hindu seer for Gandhi insult (Dec 28). The hate speeches at conclaves in Haridwar and Raipur need to be denounced in strong terms. The one at Raipur by a seer in which he commended the killing of Mahatma Gandhi is exceptionally unfortunate and rankles the mind. While such remarks by anyone has to be deprecated, the current remark is from a religious leader who is expected to be a guide to his followers. This makes it all the more important to denounce it in very strong terms. It is such unwarranted spewing of venom that brings a faith, which is otherwise known for its tolerance, to disrepute.

Problem of plenty

This is with reference to The political scenario in Punjab on slow boil (Dec 28). Since Chandigarh local body elections were fought on political lines, they represent the microcosm of the result in the soon-to-be-held Assembly elections in the state of Punjab. The state being sensitive from the point of view of the nation's security, the prospect of too many cooks spoiling the broth is a matter of concern for the entire country.

Selective restrictions

With Omicron cases having gone up to 57, the Kerala government has declared night curfew and restrictions on New Year celebrations. It is always the common man who is called upon to bear the brunt of restrictions whenever the Covid numbers increase, while politicians continue to have a free run in conducting campaigns and rallies that witness large-scale flouting of protocols. The double standards can only be self-defeating in the state's fight against Covid.

Oz dominate Ashes

The Ashes Test series is always keenly looked forward to by cricket fans across the world as it would create a lot of buzz and excitement. But the ongoing series has failed to evoke this feeling, as Australia have thoroughly dominated England so far and clinched the five-Test series 3-0. Australia's dominance in world cricket seems to be coming along nicely again after its T20 World Cup win.

R Sivakumar, Chennai

Follow Covid protocols

Whether it is TN or the rest of India, apart from providing jabs for all eligible people, all of us, including the politicians, have to maintain self-discipline by following Covid norms (Jabs for all to keep Omicron at bay, Dec 28*)*. The political class, irrespective of the polls, should find alternative ways to reach out to the voters.

Delhi doctors refuse to call off strike

Security personnel guard as doctors stage a protest against the delay in NEET PG counselling at Safdarjung Hospital in New Delhi on Tuesday | SHEKHAR YADAV

ANKITA UPADHYAY @ New Delhi

REJECTING the government's appeal of calling off their strike, resident doctors of Delhi hopistals on Tuesday said they will continue their protest against the delay in the NEET PG counseling process.

Despite a meeting with Union health minister Mansukh Mandaviya, the resident doctors' associations from all government hospitals of the capital said they are not satisfied and will continue demanding what is their right.

During the meeting with the resident doctors' associations, the minister expressed regret over Monday's manhandling of doctors by police when they were trying to take out a march towards Supreme Court.

However, the minister said that since the matter is pending in Supreme Court and is set to be heard on January 6, he cannot do much but give all the required documents to the court before the fixed date.

According to sources, while some of the resident doctors were ready to call off the strike, a majority of them said it should not be called off, considering the police actions against them. Later, in unison, the doctors decided to continue with the strike. On Wednesday, resident doctors will not work and OPD and emergency services will be affected. The doctors will take out marched in the premises of their hospitals.

"Our phones were snatched, female doctors were manhandled by male cops, apparently a case has been registered against us for rioting, causing obstruction in the duty of police. How can we call off the strike when instead of apologising to us, a case has been filed against us?" said a doctor.

More than 3,000 doctors gathered in-front of the emergency department of Safdarjung Hospital and raised slogans demanding justice. While doctors protested, patients bore the brunt of the strike. Hundreds of surgeries were cancelled, elective surgeries which were given dates of Tuesday had to be postponed.

WHY DOCS ARE AGITATED

What is the matter all about
MBBS doctors, who have finished their courses including internship, appear for National Eligibility-cum-Entrance Test for postgraduate courses (NEET-PG) to take admission for a particular stream such as medicine or surgery. Exam usually held in January. In November 2020, National Board of Examination that conducts the exams postponed it due to Covid-19 until further notice. It was rescheduled for April but pushed to September, when it was finally conducted. However, the counselling and admission process for those PG candidates who work as junior residents alongside their training, could not begin due to a clutch of cases pending in Supreme Court regarding the new quota for economically weaker sections.

Why case in Supreme Court
A bunch of petitions have been filed in SC challenging the July 29 notification of the Centre and the Medical Counselling Committee to provide 27% reservation to OBC and 10% to EWS students in all India quota medical seats. In November, government representative told SC it will revisit the ₹8 lakh income criteria set for EWS reservation & take a decision in four weeks. Counselling process will not begin until then. The 10% EWS quota decision is under challenge before a five-judge bench. The matter has been listed for January 6.

FAQ

How are working doctors concerned
Postgraduate students who study in these hospitals and train for three years are known as junior doctors. They are the backbone of the hospitals who assist senior doctors in surgeries and other functions. Currently, only two batches are functioning and an entire batch is missing as the first year junior residents have come in the second year and the second year junior doctors in the third. Third year students have passed and become senior residents in the same or other hospitals. Due to this, junior doctors have been burdened with work along with academic discourse. Lack of an incoming batch has resulted in one-third staff shortfall across such hospitals.

What are the doctors demanding
That the SC should fast-track the hearing and that the Union health ministry expedite the submission of a report on the chosen criteria of ₹8 lakh annual income for eligibility of the quota. The doctors lack hands to operate hospitals and need another lot of doctors following the rise in Covid-19 cases amid Omicron scare. —Ankita Upadhyay

Nagaland SIT unlikely to finish inquiry by Jan 5

Team investigating army killing of civilians expanded, seeks time

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

IT appears unlikely that the Special Investigation Team (SIT), which is probing the December 4 killing of 14 civilians by Indian Army in a botched ambush at Oting in Nagaland's Mon district, can complete the investigation on time.

It was given a month by the Nagaland government to complete the probe. The deadline expires on January 5. A senior Nagaland Police official privy to the investigation virtually ruled out the possibility, stating that the police get 90 days to file a charge sheet in court. He cited the gamut of the probe, pointing at the involvement of various stake-holders at different levels.

The state government has already expanded the SIT that was formed with five officers on December 5. Around 16 or 17 others were co-opted in due course, taking its strength to 21-22. The team includes five IPS officers, the official said.

An undated order, issued by Additional Director General of Police (Law and Order) Sandeep M Tamgadge, said the officers co-opted would work under a team. The SIT has so far examined 55-60 witnesses and will examine more people.

"We have taken help of cyber, forensic and ballistics experts from all over the country," the official said. "We are conducting the investigation in a very professional, serious and sincere manner."

Members of a National Institute of Electronics & Information Technology team aiding the SIT are examining data including videos and photographs related to the tragic incident, sources said.

Meanwhile, an Army team probing the incident is scheduled to visit Oting on Wednesday. However, the Konyak (tribe) civil society organisations made it clear that the personnel should not come in uniform or with arms. As such, Nagaland Police will escort the team, the sources said.

On December 10, the Konyak organisations had served a 30-day ultimatum demanding that those involved in the killings of civillians be booked and the action taken report brought in public domain.

27 projects to boost LAC connectivity

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

IN a significant step to boost connectivity along the Line of Actual Control (LAC), Defence Minister Rajnath Singh on Tuesday inaugurated 24 bridges and three roads built by Border Roads Organisation (BRO) in four states and two UTs along the northern and eastern borders.

The e-inaugurated projects include India's first indigenous Class-70 140-foot double-lane modular bridge, built at an altitude of 11,000 feet at Flag Hill Dokala, Sikkim, and Chisumle-Demchok Road at Umling La pass at over 19,000 feet in Ladakh, which holds the record of the world's highest motorable road.

The Ministry of Defence said, "Of the 24 bridges, nine are in J&K, five each in Ladakh and Himachal Pradesh, three in Uttarakhand and one each in Sikkim and Arunachal Pradesh." Of the three roads, two are in Ladakh and one is in West Bengal, MoD added.

"The road at Umling La pass will enable faster movement of armed forces, boost tourism and ensure socio-economic development of the region. Roads in border areas cater to strategic needs and ensure equal participation of remote areas in the nation's development," said Rajnath Singh.

Trinamool to take Mother Teresa charity's FCRA rejection to Goa poll field

PRANAB MONDAL @ Kolkata

THE Centre's decision of rejecting the Mother Teresa-founded Missionaries of Charity's renewal application required for receiving foreign contributions has not only drawn flak overseas, but also handed West Bengal's ruling Trinamool Congress an issue to utilise in the Goa Assembly elections in which Christians have a significant role.

The TMC, which declared a tooth-and-nail battle against the BJP in the upcoming Goa elections, said the party would not miss this opportunity. "The recent attacks on Christians and rejection of Missionaries of Charity's renewal application will be one of our tools against the BJP in Goa. In the coastal state, Christians comprise more than 25 per cent of the population," said a senior TMC leader in Kolkata.

TMC sources said the party is trying to consolidate Christian voters in its favour. Last week, former Goa MLA Lavoo Mamledar resigned from the party along with four others, alleging the TMC was trying "to divide Goans on religious lines". Mamledar, who was earlier with the Maharashtrawadi Gomantak Party, had joined the TMC three months ago.

The Centre rejected the Missionaries of Charity's renewal application for registration under the Foreign Contribution Regulation Act, 2010, after it noticed "some adverse inputs". The rejection came after a series of incidents of attacks on Christians. Referring to recent attacks on Christians, The Guardian reported that the rejection of the Missionaries of Charity's application comes less than two weeks after Hindu hardliners accused the charity of carrying out forced conversions of Hindus to Christianity in a home for girls in Vadodara, Gujarat.

Vatican News wrote the decision "has triggered reactions of concern at a time in which the ruling BJP party is accused of promoting hate attacks on religious minorities". The Washington Times wrote the 'block' on receiving foreign contributions is a blow to one of the most prominent groups running shelters for the poor.

'Attack on minorities by BJP govt'

Congress has said Mother Teresa and her Missionaries of Charity are the latest victims of the BJP government's vicious, vengeful and hate-driven agenda against minorities. "Haridwar to Kolkata — BJP & its hate mongers are creating fake bogies of communalism. This is an affront to India's constitutionalism," said Randeep Singh Surjewala.

Divisive ideologies and hate causing havoc: Sonia

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

ACCUSING the BJP government of rewriting history, Congress president Sonia Gandhi on Tuesday said divisive ideologies, anchored in hate and prejudice which had no role to play in freedom movement, are now causing havoc on the secular fabric of our society.

In a veiled attack on the government, Sonia said they inflame passions, instill fear and spread animosity. "The finest traditions of our parliamentary democracy are deliberately damaged. The Indian National Congress will fight these destructive forces with all might at its command. Let there be no doubt on our steadfast resolve. We have never and we will never compromise on our fundamental beliefs that are part of our glorious legacy."

She further said that electoral ups and downs are inevitable but what is enduring and lasting is the party's commitment to the service of people of a diverse society. "136 years ago today, Indian National Congress was founded. Over decades, it has confronted several challenges and always demonstrated its resilience. Today, we rededicate ourselves to the ideals, values and principles of our organisation that have been shaped, guided and inspired by some of the greatest, noblest and most selfless of Indians of the 20th century," she added.

As she was hoisting the party flag at the head office, the flag fell from the pole. Later, she and a few others held the flag and displayed it briefly.

Rahul Gandhi said he was proud to be in the party. "We are Congress, the party which laid the foundation of our democracy and we are proud of this legacy. Best wishes on Congress Foundation Day."

As deadline nears, chess body yet to reply to bidders' queries

SHAHID FARIDI @ New Delhi

THE All India Chess Federation's (AICF) plan to hold 'Online Chess League' and 'Chess in School' has run into rough weather with bidders accusing it of opacity regarding qualifying criteria for becoming franchises.

The AICF has decided to hold the Indian Chess League (ICL) from June 2022 on the lines of the hugely popular Indian Premier League (IPL) organised by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI). Like the IPL, the ICL will have multiple franchises owning multiple players from India and abroad. The event is expected to generate thousands of crores of rupees in revenue.

Along with the ICL, the AICF plans to start two more events namely, the 'Online Chess League' and 'Chess in School'.

An advertisement was issued earlier this month inviting expression of interest (EOI). The lack of details in this advertisement has left the prospective bidders puzzled. The advertisement reads as follows: "The All India Chess Federation invites companies to submit an expression of Interest for a proposed Online Chess League and partner in Chess in School programme to take place from 2022. Interested experienced parties having sound financial background may submit their applications with complete details to email: indianchessfed@gmail.com by 25th December 2021."

This advertisement is also available at the AICF website aicf.in.

Apart from the lack of clarity on "sound financial background" and "complete details", prospective bidders found the absence of a request for proposal, which is usually put out to describe the scope of work, financial arrangements and qualifying criteria, surprising. Neither was any pre-bid meeting held to give details of the project.

Replies from AICF to the enquiries by prospective bidders have further confounded them. When a bidder wrote to the honorary secretary of the AICF, Bharat Singh Chauhan, proposing to make a presentation regarding their "ability to conceive, implement and execute successfully the Online Chess league and be a partner in Chess in School programme", the answer from AICF talked only about the Online Chess League and gave a complete miss to the Chess in School programme. This made the bidder wonder if the AICF was not entertaining any bids for the Chess in School programme.

Many other anxious bidders have shot off letters to the AICF. Underlining that "everything looked very arbitrary and confusing", a bidder asked the AICF to provide the following details "transparently and clearly": 1) What is the process of bidding? 2) What is the financial model? Is it revenue sharing? 3) For what period the franchise is being offered? 4) Does the successful bidder get exclusive right to conduct, broadcast, record, advertise, merchandise, and enter into endorsement/support/sponsorship contracts with players? 5) Can the bidder get third party sponsorship for broadcasting, advertising, and paying player fee? 6) What is meant by online chess league; how will it be organised, and in how many states? 7) Has the software for this already been developed; or is it yet to be developed; who will develop it? 8) Who will bear the expenses of events, judges, venue, etc?

Prospective bidders are wondering what the AICF meant by "sound financial background" and what "complete details" they were required to provide in order to qualify as a successful bidder

The AICF is yet to reply to the queries even as the deadline for earnest money deposit (EMD) ends on Wednesday (Dec 29). A questionnaire sent by this paper to the AICF president, Dr Sanjay Kapoor, on December 24 elicited no response till the time of writing this.

Speaking to this correspondent, a bidder said the AICF was copying the BCCI style of functioning that led to the Supreme Court setting up the Lodha committee to regulate its functioning in order to ensure transparency and integrity. He said the AICF would not be allowed to choose the franchise in this non-transparent and arbitrary manner. "We will go to court if we have to," he said, requesting not to be named.

The ICL was announced on December 14, this year by the AICF president. He said "the Indian Chess League is going to change the face of chess in the country. It will help us attain our goal of becoming world No 1 in the near future."

He said this first of its kind six-team franchise event will take place over two weeks in a double round-robin format in one or two cities. The top two teams will clash in the finals. Each team will consist of eight players, including two Super Grandmasters, two Indian Grandmasters, two Women Grandmasters and one Junior Indian boy and girl each.

Speaking on the occasion, AICF secretary Bharat Singh said "We will announce the criteria for becoming a franchise owner shortly."

Apollo-J&K MoU for multi-speciality hosp

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

A day after the first real estate investors' summit in Jammu and Kashmir in which 39 MoUs worth ₹18,300 crore were signed, J&K government on Tuesday signed an MoU with Apollo Hospitals for a multi-speciality facility in Jammu, the winter capital of the UT.

The MoU was signed by Principal Secretary to J&K Government, Industries & Commerce Department, Ranjan Prakash Thakur and Dr Preetha Reddy, Executive Vice Chairperson of Apollo Hospitals Enterprise Ltd. J&K Lt Governor Manoj Sinha was present. Apollo will set up a 250-bed hospital. It is expected to be completed in two years. In the second phase, the hospital would be upgraded to 500 beds. Dr Reddy said Apollo is a brand that has trust and loyalty and this project will generate more than 1,000 direct employment opportunities.

The hospital will not only be a training centre for doctors but also for nurses, paramedics, technicians and allied healthcare workers. "Tomorrow when J&K becomes a hub of healthcare tourism, people from rest of the world can be treated here. This project will help us heal the world," she said.

Lt Governor Sinha said there are healthcare facilities in government hospitals but private sector was lacking. "We are happy that country's leading healthcare group Apollo has signed an MoU with us." He also announced that three-four similar projects are in the pipeline and talks with people are going on. "We will be signing MoUs with them also," added the Lt Governor.

PM chugs on Metro power, harps on oppn corruption

In Kanpur, Modi takes potshot at Akhilesh Yadav over black money

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

Political PULSE

SETTING the tone for the new narrative, Prime Minister Narendra Modi launched a direct attack on the Samajwadi Party (SP) claiming it had earlier sprinkled 'Itra' (perfume) of corruption" which was now surfacing for everyone to see.

"The boxes full of cash were recovered a couple of days back. Everyone saw the mountains of currency notes. It is 'their' achievement. This is 'their' (SP) reality," the PM said, addressing a large gathering after inaugurating the first leg of 9-km of Kanpur Metro Rail Project.

He questioned the "guarded silence" of the SP leadership over the cash seizure from the premises of a perfume and pan masala manufacturer linking him directly to the opposition.

"Why are they silent now when the boxes full of cash are being seized, whether it was also their work and will they draw credit for it?" he asked. "They have locks on their mouth and not coming forward to claim the credit..."

In Unnao, SP chief Akhilesh Yadav, who was leading his Vijay Rath Yatra, tried to come clear of the controversy by denying any link with the tainted perfume trader. "Raids on Jain are not linked with Samajwadi Party at all. This incident shows that demonetisation has failed. Officials who conducted raids may tell the source of the recovered newly printed ₹2,000 notes," he said.

Meanwhile, the PM continued to attack the previous regimes over corruption and accused them of turning a blind eye to Uttar Pradesh's development. "Earlier, parties used to rule UP with the mentality of plundering it. Lottery lagi hai loot lo... pehle ki sarkaron ne UP ko khoob loota (they used to think that they had got the lottery to plunder the state)," he claimed while referring to alleged scams worth crores in previous regimes.

Reiterating the slogan —farq saaf hai (difference is clear) — coined by him, Modi again stressed on the might of the double engine government saying that when the public money was used for the benefit of people, the projects were delivered in time as the double engine government worked day in and day out ensure the delivery in time unlike the previous ones.

BJP trinity go all out in poll campaign, Union ministers given specific tasks

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

THE BJP has gone all guns blazing in Uttar Pradesh with its top three leaders — PM Narendra Modi, Union Home Minister Amit Shah and party chief J P Nadda — leading the charge amid anticipation that the election dates may soon be announced.

With the Janvishwash Yatra going on full swing in which the Lok Sabha MPs are holding road shows in their constituencies, Modi is visiting the state at short intervals. On Tuesday, Modi was in Kanpur to inaugurate the Metro project, which is a showcase of development in the state.

Shah, who has taken the BJP poll management in his hands, held a rally in Hardoi and later reached Varanasi. Nadda, meanwhile, addressed a Janvishwas rally in the Samajwadi Party stronghold Badayun.

Apart from the top three, scores of Union Ministers too have entered the turf, with specific tasks assigned by the party brass. It is also learnt that there will be no Union Cabinet meet this week, given the high voltage rollout of the campaign bandwagon in UP.

Ahead of the poll date announcement, the PM is likely to be on a spree of inaugural events. With Modi in the lead, the BJP is seemingly making a strong pitch for its development credentials to beat the anti-incumbency factor against the Yogi Adityanath government. The PM has already logged in double digit visits to inaugurate developmental projects, besides presiding the opening of the renovated Kashi Vishwanath corridor in Varanasi.

While the top campaigners have begun holding rallies, senior BJP leaders have also been reaching out to the caste constituencies consolidate the support base. With the SP also going full steam, the BJP is seemingly pressing the accelerator amid the indications that the Akhilesh Yadav-led party will strongly challenge the party in the elections.

New Delhi: The All India Students' Association (AISA) has alleged that the Uttar Pradesh government is attempting to breach the privacy and enforcing control behind the façade of providing mobiles and the tablets to the students. The state government had launched a free smartphone and tablet distribution campaign for 1 crore of youths from December 25. So far, over 60,000 smartphones and tablets have been distributed free among students. "Students who were given free smartphones and the tablets by the Yogi Adityanath government have found out a warning on their devices saying 'This device is not private'. The students are confused as well as scared of as to what is happening with their devices without obtaining permissions from the users," the AISA said. A youth, who was given a free Smartphone, said when his opens the gadget, a message appears saying that the device is not private.

Hyderpora: SIT gives clean chit to forces, says youth was militant

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

GIVING a clean chit to security forces in the Hyderpora encounter, the J&K Police's Special Investigation Team (SIT) on Tuesday said dentist Dr Mudasir Gul was shot dead by a foreign militant and that building owner Altaf Bhat was taken hostage and later killed in crossfire.

It asserted that foreign militant Bilal Bhai and local militant Amir Magray were killed in the gunfight on November 15.

The families of Amir, Gul and Altaf had alleged that the trio was innocent and killed in a staged encounter.

Deputy Inspector General Sujit Kumar Singh, who headed the SIT, said that after the building was cordoned off, police and army personnel found two rooms, one of Gul and another of Bhat, locked.

Bhat, Gul who had rented space in the building, and his office boy Amir were asked whether any suspicious person was present, he said, adding the trio replied in negative and volunteered to accompany the forces during the search.

Amir knew that the foreign militant was present in the building, the DIG added. "CCTV footage and other evidence show Amir accompanying Bilal during the Jamalata attack. Amir was a frequent traveller to Bandipora. He had also traveled to Baramulla and Gurez. He was a militant."

Narrating the sequence of killings, Singh said the foreign militant, who was present in the building, killed the dentist. "Gul went to the room. It seems there was some argument and the foreign militant got orders from across that may be he had led to this operation. On suspicion, the foreign militant killed Gul in the attic."

The DIG said the foreign militant and Amir tried to take the building owner as human shield. "He (Altaf) was first to be killed in crossfire, followed by Amir a few steps ahead and the foreign militant about 83 ft away." Two pistols, four magazines and 8-10 codeine bottles were recovered, Singh said.

Pro-Khalistan militant held in Germany

Chandigarh: Khalistan terrorist Jaswinder Singh Multani was detained in Germany in connection with the Ludhiana bomb blast. DHARM SANSAD

Hate speech accused files plaint against Caliphs

VINEET UPADHYAY @ Dehradun

FORMER Uttar Pradesh Waqf Board chairman Jitendra Narayan Tyagi (Waseem Rizvi before becoming a Hindu recently), who is an accused in Haridwar hate speech case, submitted a complaint to police on Tuesday against Prophet Mohammad and the first three Caliphs — Abu Bakr, Umar and Osman — alleging they instigated violence against those who do not believe in Islam.

However, Haridwar police has so far not registered any FIR on Tyagi's complaint. Rakendra Kathiat, in-charge of Haridwar Kotwali, said, "We have received the written complaint...senior officials of the department are also monitoring."

Tyagi alleged that Muslims in Haridwar gathered and tried to kill him and Hindu seers, including Yati Narsinghananda Giri, who had organised the Dharm Sansad from December 17 to 19 where inflammatory speeches targeting the minority community were made.

Annexing translation of 24 couplets from the Quran that Tyagi alleged encouraged violence against worshippers of other religions, he further said in his complaint that it "was propagated as the book of Allah without any basis". The decision to submit the complaint was taken after a meeting of the 21-member 'Core Group' which organised the Dharm Sansad in Haridwar.

Schoolkids made to take 'die & kill' oath

LUCKNOW: Even as a controversy rages over hate speeches made at Dharm Sansads in Haridwar and Chhattisgarh, a video purportedly released by Suresh Chavhanke, editor of Sudarshan TV, was on Tuesday doing the rounds on social media showing schoolchildren, allegedly of a school in UP's Sonbhadra, being administered a pledge to make India a Hindu Rashtra.

In the video, students in red uniform and some toddlers standing in assembly are heard repeating a pledge to "fight, die and kill, if required" to make India a Hindu nation.

While no district authority could be contacted to establish the veracity of the incident, police sources claimed that the authenticity of the video was being checked and action would be initiated thereafter. ENS

Property dispute of royal family settled

The 24-year-old property dispute of the former royal family of Jaipur has been resolved through the mediation of the Supreme Court. The long-drawn-out and messy property feud in the family of Maharaja Sawai Man Singh II has finally ended with some dignity. The property-feud, including those valued at over `15,000 crore, was going on primarily between the grandson of Maharani Gayatri Devi and her stepson Prithvi Raj Singh's son Vijit Singh. As per the agreement, Gayatri Devi's grandson Devraj Singh and granddaughter Lalitya Kumari will get ownership of the Jai Mahal Palace. In return, they would give up their father's share in the historic Rambagh Palace to Vijit Singh, the son of Prithvi Singh who was the son of Maharaja Sawai Man Singh II of Jaipur through his second wife, Kishore Kanwar.

Pilot in the headlines for variety of reasons

Former Deputy CM of Rajasthan Sachin Pilot is in the limelight these days. Last Saturday, Pilot took part in a drill in combat uniform after being promoted to the rank of Captain in the Territorial Army in Delhi. A day later on Sunday, he tied a 51-meter-long safa (turban) in Dhans village of Tonk taking everyone by surprise. Similarly, after seeing a large turnout of supporters during his visit to Bansoor in Alwar, Pilot got out of his SUV and jumped on the bonnet and greeted all his supporters. Experts believe that Pilot is trying to maintain his crowd-puller image after he did not land any role in the recent Gehlot government cabinet expansion.

Russia rights group shut amid govt crackdown

Supreme Court orders liquidation of country's oldest civil rights group; Memorial Int'l chronicled political repression

MOSCOW

RUSSIA'S Supreme Court on Tuesday ruled that one of the country's oldest and most prominent human rights organizations should be shut down, a move that stirred up public outrage and is the latest step in a months-long crackdown on rights activists, independent media and opposition supporters.

The Prosecutor General's Office last month petitioned the Supreme Court to revoke the legal status of Memorial — an international human rights group that rose to prominence for its studies of political repression in the Soviet Union and currently encompasses more than 50 smaller groups in Russia and abroad. The court on Tuesday ruled in favor of the prosecution, which charged at the hearing that Memorial "creates a false image of the USSR as a terrorist state, whitewashes and rehabilitates Nazi criminals."

A video tweeted by the independent Mediazona news outlet showed a large crowd of people in front of the courthouse chanting "Disgrace!" in response to the ruling.

Memorial, also known in Russia as International Memorial, was declared a "foreign agent" in 2016 — a label that implies additional government scrutiny and carries strong pejorative connotations that can discredit the targeted organization. In their lawsuit to shut it down, prosecutors alleged that the group repeatedly violated regulations obliging it to mark itself as a foreign agent, and tried to conceal the designation.

Memorial and its supporters have maintained the accusations are politically motivated, and the organisation's leaders have vowed to continue their work even if the court shuts it down. "Of course, nothing is over with this," Maria Eismont, one of the lawyers that represented the group in court, said after the ruling. "We will appeal, and Memorial will live on with the people..."

Pressure on the group has sparked public outrage, with many prominent figures speaking out in its support this month. Several people were reportedly detained on Tuesday for picketing the courthouse. Memorial's sister organization, the Memorial Human Rights Center, is up for closure as well, with a court hearing in the Moscow City Court scheduled for Wednesday morning.

Russian authorities in recent months have mounted pressure on rights groups, media outlets and individual journalists, naming dozens as foreign agents. Some were declared "undesirable" — a label that outlaws organizations in Russia — or accused of links to "undesirable" groups, several were forced to shut down or disband themselves to prevent further prosecution.

On Saturday, the authorities blocked the website of the OVD-Info group and urged social media platforms to take down its accounts. AP

Lebanese PM expects draft IMF deal soon

Beirut: Lebanon's PM said that his government's talks with the International Monetary Fund are inching closer to a "final formula" for a draft on an agreement before the end of February. Najib Mikati said the Cabinet was doing "its homework" ahead of talks with the IMF in mid-January. An IMF delegation will visit Lebanon again in late January or early February to lay out "the final formula for the agreement with them..." Mikati said.

Somalia tug-of-war could turn violent; nations raise alarm

MOGADISHU

SOMALIA'S neighbours and Western countries have expressed alarm over an intensifying row between the country's president and prime minister as heavily armed factions patrolled parts of the capital Mogadishu on Tuesday, raising fears that the political crisis could become violent.

Soldiers loyal to the prime minister took up positions near the presidential palace a day after President Mohamed Abdullahi Mohamed, better known as Farmajo, announced the suspension of Prime Minister Mohamed Hussein Roble, who accused him of an "attempted coup".

Relations between the pair have long been frosty, but the latest developments have sparked concerns for Somalia's stability as the country struggles to hold long-delayed elections and fight a jihadist insurgency.

On Tuesday, pro-Roble troops paraded the streets, fuelling fear among Mogadishu residents weary of armed confrontations.

"They are not far away from the main security checkpoints of the presidential palace, they are armed with heavy machine guns and RPGs (rocket-propelled grenades)", Saido Mumin, a resident, told AFP.

International observers have urged both sides to resolve the escalating dispute while some Somali traditional elders and politicians have also sought to calm tempers.

"Some politicians and elders (have) started going between the two sides to de-escalate the situation, but these efforts are yet to... bring about a formal resolution", a source in the office of the president told AFP on condition of anonymity. AFP

Sebi tightens rules for use of IPO proceeds

90-day lock-in period for anchor investors and other measures will offer comfort to retail investors, says regulator

NEW NORMS

- Firms can use only 35% of the total IPO proceeds for unidentified inorganic growth
- Anchor investors can sell only 50% of their shares at the end of one month and the remaining at the end of 90 days
- IPO's upper price band should be at least 5% more than the floor price
- Those holding over 20% of the pre-issue shareholding of the issuer company cannot offer more than 50% of their holding in an offer for sale
- Selling shareholders (individually or acting in concert) cannot offer more than 10% of their pre-issue shareholding in the OFS if they hold less than 20% of the pre-issue shareholding

RAM SAHGAL @Mumbai

RETAIL investors can now make informed decisions on investing, especially in IPOs of new-age, loss-making companies, with Sebi having tweaked the IPO regulations at its board meeting on Tuesday.

Companies, especially new-age ones, raise funds from the public for various objectives (objects of the issue), among them being acquisition of other companies for future inorganic growth and general corporate purpose (GCP).

Sebi has said that where the objective is inorganic growth, both acquisition and investment target remain unidentified, the issuer can use only 35% of the total proceeds for such objects.

This limit will not apply if the proposed acquisition or strategic investment object has been identified and suitable disclosures about such acquisitions or investments are made in the offer documents.

Sebi chief Ajay Tyagi

"This will make it more difficult for loss-making companies to raise funds from the public," said a merchant banker, requesting anonymity.

Sebi also said that from April 1, 2022, anchor investors can sell only 50% of their shares at the end of one month and the remaining at the end of 90 days.

Presently, anchor investors can offload their entire portion at the end of the 30-day lock in. This causes huge volatility in share prices, which can affect small retail investors. This was seen in the case of food delivery company Zomato, whose share tanked almost 9% when the anchor lock-in ended, and in One97 Communications, which plumbed 13% on the exit of the anchor investors earlier this month.

The regulator has also mandated that the IPO's upper price band should be at least 5% more than the floor price to ensure better price discovery in the book building process.

Also, those holding over 20% of the pre-issue shareholding of the issuer company, either individually or as persons acting in concert, cannot offer more than 50% of their holding in an offer for sale (OFS). Selling shareholders either individually or acting in concert cannot offer more than 10% of their pre issue shareholding in the OFS if they hold less than 20% of the pre-issue shareholding.

For a frequently traded security, the floor price for a preferential issue will be the higher of 90 or 10 trading days' volume weighted average price (VWAP) — down from 26 weeks or 2 weeks — of the scrip preceding the relevant date or as per any stricter provision in the articles of association of the issuer company. For an infrequently traded security, the valuation report by a registered independent valuer will be required.

An additional requirement for a valuation report from a registered independent valuer will be mandatory in case of change in control or allotment of over 5% of the post issue fully diluted share capital of the issuer company to an allottee.

"All these measures will offer more comfort to the retail investors," said Ajay Tyagi, chairman, Sebi.

India's public debt rises 3.97% in Q2

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

FOR the second quarter India's public debt increased to ₹125,71,747 crore at end-September 2021 from ₹120,91,193 crore, up by 3.97% on quarter-on-quarter basis.

"Total liabilities (including liabilities under the 'public account') of the government, as per provisional data, increased to ₹125,71,747 crore at end-September 2021 from ₹120,91,193 crore at end-June 2021. This represented a quarter-on-quarter increase of 3.97% in Q2 FY22. Public debt accounted for 91.15% of total outstanding liabilities at end-September 2021 from 91.60% at end-June 2021," the latest public debt management quarterly report said.

High public debt has been a matter of concern for the government. Earlier this month, the finance ministry had said that the government's debt is estimated to be at 62% of the GDP as of March 31, 2022 and government is already taking steps to reduce it. "Increasing the buoyancy of tax revenue through improved compliance, mobilisation of resources through monetisation of assets, improving efficiency and effectiveness of public expenditure etc. are the important measures initiated by the government to control the fiscal deficit and the debt burden," Minister of State for Finance Pankaj Chaudhary said.

During Q2 of FY22, the government issued dated securities worth ₹3.83 lakh cr against ₹3.18 lakh cr in Q1 FY21, while repayments were at ₹34,070 crore. The weighted average yield of primary issuances increased to 6.26% in Q2 FY22 from 6.11% a year ago.

BANK FRAUDS FALL BY 56% IN FY21: RBI

SUNITHA NATTI

AS businesses took out fewer loans, bank frauds declined both in the current and previous fiscal. In FY21, fresh fraud occurrences fell by a staggering 56% over FY20, according to RBI data.

The central bank, which also reports frauds based on the date of reporting by banks, found that the value of frauds too dipped in FY21 by 25% over FY20.

According to the report on Trend and Progress of Banking in India 2020-21 released Tuesday, fresh frauds in FY21 stood at ₹14,158 crore as against ₹32,290 crore seen in FY20. Based on the date of reporting, the amount of frauds fell to ₹1.38 lakh crore in FY21 from ₹1.85 lakh crore in FY20. An overwhelming majority of the cases, or 99% to be precise, relate to advances or loans extended to businesses big and small and retail loans as well. But in terms of volume, the number of fraudulent card or internet transactions is on the rise and accounted for 35% of the total number of cases in FY21. However, in terms of value, it's negligible at ₹119 crore.

For the first six months of the current fiscal, there were nearly 1,600 instances of frauds aggregating ₹353 crore.

Of this, over 1,100 cases pertain to card/internet transactions, though the value stood at ₹32 crore. But the increase in number is alarming as it erodes customer confidence just when the government's focus on digital banking is taking shape. Interestingly, private banks accounted for a majority for card, internet and cash-related cases, while the major share of loan-related cases pertained to state-run banks.

That said, in FY21, there was a marked increase in frauds related to private banks both in volume and value. During the first half of FY21, private lenders accounted for over half the number of reported cases, though in value terms, the share of public sector lenders was higher, indicating predominance of high value frauds.

As the central bank stepped up vigilance, banking frauds have been declining.

RBI in for basic model of digital currency first

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

AS the central bank is set to launch its own digital currency, it is planning to adopt basic model initially as there are many design elements which it is yet to decide upon, it said in a report titled 'Trend and Progress of Banking in India 2020-21'.

"Given its dynamic impact on macroeconomic policy making, it is necessary to adopt basic models initially, and test comprehensively so that they have minimal impact on monetary policy and the banking system," the report released on Tuesday said.

The report added that certain crucial design elements need to be examined before it is launched.

"Certain crucial questions about design elements of CBDC need to be navigated before its introduction, e.g., whether the CBDC would be general purpose and available for retail use , or would it be for wholesale use. Furthermore, in a country like India, the decision about distribution architecture, i.e., whether CBDC would be issued directly by the central bank or through commercial banks, needs to be carefully weighed," the report added.

The RBI also highlighted that banks need to improve corporate governance.

"Banks would need to strengthen their corporate governance practices and risk management strategies to build resilience in an increasingly dynamic and uncertain economic environment," the RBI said in its latest report on Indian banking.

KisanKraft to invest ₹100 cr to set up new plant in AP

UMA KANNAN @Bengaluru

AGRI-equipment company for small farmers KisanKraft, which recently commissioned a 46-acre factory campus at Nellore, will set up another factory on the same campus.

"We have committed about ₹100 crore investment into this plant. Another factory is under construction on the same campus. Our inter-cultivator/engine/water pump factory has already started production and we have received an order of 5,000 inter-cultivators worth about ₹20 crore from Nepal," The Managing Director of KisanKraft Ravindra Agarwal said.

KisanKraft currently has a manufacturing capacity of 75,000 units of inter-cultivators per annum at its facility.

The company, which has been growing about 20% Y-o-Y, says SAARC nations and Africa are showing high interest in its machines.

"Inter-cultivators are important multi-utility equipment for weeding, soil turning, soil mulching, and they have attachments for trenching, seeding, irrigating, harvesting etc. We will not only reduce imports but also increase exports of farm equipment. Our integrated facility also serves an important role for our R&D and has plots for testing and development of new machines," Agarwal said.

KisanKraft has served over 50 lakh farmers so far in India through its dealers. The company has over 5,000 dealers and it is aiming to double them in the next three years.

CHINA

LOW-COST LOANS LIKELY FOR EMISSIONS CUTS

China's central bank will by the end of the month issue a first batch of low-cost loans to financial institutions to enable carbon emissions cuts, state-owned Xinhua reported on Tuesday, citing an interview with central bank governor Yi Gang. The People's Bank of China (PBOC) in November said it would provide 60% of the loan principal taken out by financial institutions for carbon emission cuts, with a one-year lending rate at 1.75%, without specifying when the lending would be issued. The measure is in line with China's broader goal to bring emissions to a peak before 2030 and achieve carbon neutrality by 2060, as well as to shelter the economy from the fallout of the Covid-19 pandemic. China's economy, the world's biggest after the US, faces the triple pressure of falling demand, supply problems and weakening expectations. The PBOC is keeping monetary policy flexible with ample liquidity.

JAPAN

UNEMPLOYMENT RATE RISES TO 2.8% IN NOVEMBER

Japan's joblessness rate rose to 2.8% in November, while the availability of jobs matched that of the previous month, government data showed on Tuesday. The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate increased 0.1 percentage point from the previous month for the first increase in six months, after the Covid-19 state of emergency was lifted in October, during which people were asked to refrain from nonessential outings, reports Xinhua news agency. According to separate government data from the Ministry of Health, Labour and Welfare, the job availability ratio in November remained unchanged from a month earlier at 1.15, meaning that there were 115 job openings for every 100 job seekers. The number of unemployed in November totalled 1.92 million, rising 100,000 from the previous month, up for the first time in three months, official data showed. Among them, 760,000 voluntarily left their jobs, up 60,000, and 500,000 were new job seekers, up 10,000, while 480,000 were laid off, unchanged from the previous month.

SHARES RISE, YEN SLIDES AS OMICRON FEARS WANE

Asian shares edged higher on Tuesday, cruising in the slipstream of another record-setting day on Wall Street, while the safe-haven yen lost ground as traders stayed in riskier assets. A variety of asset classes from oil to Japan's Nikkei Stock Average are now trading at around one-month highs, having walked back losses from late November when the Omicron variant of Covid-19 first emerged and sent investors scurrying for safe havens. As the worst fears of the impact of the new variant have subsided, investors have been returning to risk assets. On Tuesday, Japan's Nikkei gained 1.3%, and touched its highest since November, 26, while MSCI's broadest index of Asia-Pacific shares outside Japan gained 0.66%. Recent losses by index heavyweights like Alibaba and Tencent mean the broad benchmark is still well off its late November levels. The yen slipped to 114.87 per dollar, having touched a one-month low earlier in the session.

Tough Road Ahead for film industry as Delhi shuts down theatres

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU
@New Delhi

THE Delhi Government's decision to shut down cinemas while enforcing the 'yellow' alert of the Graded Response Action Plan (GRAP) has caused massive uncertainty and could lead to irreparable damage for the Indian Film Industry, said Kamal Gainchandani, President, Multiplex Association of India.

Gainchandani, who is also the CEO of PVR Pictures, recommended a seating capacity restriction of 50% to be reintroduced at cinemas.

Delhi's decision to close cinemas couldn't have come at a more worrying time for multiplex owners as very recently they have started witnessing a surge in ticket bookings.

Looming uncertainty

While the curb will have a big impact on the box office collections of recently released movies like 83, Spider-Man: No Way Home, what's more worrying for the industry is the possibility of a similar step by other state governments

This decision may also severely dent revenues of multiplex owners in the coming quarters who are already deep in losses.

During the second quarter of the current financial year (Q2FY22), multiplex chain operator PVR had reported a consolidated net loss of ₹153.13 crore, while Inox Leisure's consolidated net loss had widened to ₹87.66 crore in the same quarter.

The two leading chains and film industry overall were expecting a big revival in the coming quarter on the back of rapid vaccination and big releases. However, the fast spread of the omicron variant of Covid-19 has again posed a big threat to the sector's revival.

Gainchandani said that the period since March 2020 is undeniably the most challenging period faced by Indian cinemas and requested that cinemas should get equal treatment with comparable industries and institutions. He also urged the Delhi Government to consider introducing "double vaccination requirement" to enter cinemas, as is the case in some of the other states (including Maharashtra).

Following the Delhi government's announcement, shares of movie theater chains PVR Limited and INOX Leisure Limited fell sharply. PVR shares tumbled 3.58% to close the Tuesday session at ₹1,286 a share while Inox closed marginally lower at ₹351.

Renewable energy sector gets $7.27 bn FDI since 2014-15: Govt

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

INDIA'S renewable energy Industry received foreign direct investment (FDI) worth $7.27 billion from 2014-15 till June 2021, said the ministry of New and Renewable Energy on Tuesday.

The ministry also mentioned that India's renewable energy programme is driven by private sector investments.

"As per Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) data Cell, DPIIT, the Indian 'Non-Conventional Energy' sector received approximately US$ 7.27 billion as FDI from the year 2014-15 up to June 2021. Of this, FDI of US$ 797.21 million was attracted during 2020-21," said the ministry in a statement. The credit for hike in FDI, the ministry gives to its liberal foreign investment policy that allows the foreign investors to enter into joint ventures with an Indian partner for financial and/or technical collaboration and for setting up of renewable energy-based power generation projects. Up to 100 % foreign investment as equity qualifies for automatic approval, under the extant FDI policy of the government.

As per REN21 Renewables 2020 Global status Report , during the period 2014 -2019, renewable energy programmes and projects in India attracted an investment of US$ 64.4 billion. In the year 2019 alone, US$ 11.2 billion were invested.

"New opportunities have emerged, and altogether new business space has been created. Indian companies have begun to explore foreign stock exchanges as a source of funds. India is progressively becoming a favored destination for investment in renewable energy," said the ministry.

At COP 21, India had committed to achieving 40% of its installed electricity capacity from non-fossil energy sources by 2030. The government claims to have achieved this target in November 2021 itself.

Chip making: Intel invited to avail sops

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

IT Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw on Tuesday welcomed Intel in India as Intel Foundry Services is said to have expressed interest under the semiconductor profit linked incentive. Intel Foundry Services president Randhir Thakur in a tweet lauded the semiconductor design and manufacturing incentives announced by the government.

"Congrats to @GoI_MeitY @AshwiniVaishnaw @Rajeev_GoI for Semiconductor design & manufacturing incentives for India as hub for electronics & semiconductors. Glad to see a plan laid out for all aspects of the supply chain: talent, design, manufacturing, test, packaging & logistics," tweeted Randhir Thakur.

In a reply, the minister tweeted, "Intel - welcome to India."

However, Intel is yet to release any official comment on it. But as per the government, it expects all the big giants in the semiconductor industry including Intel, TSMC, Samsung invest in the country.

Earlier this month, the government had approved a ₹76,000-crore scheme to boost semiconductor and display manufacturing in the country and attract large chipmakers to invest in India. With the semiconductor incentive scheme, the government expects investments of around ₹1.7 lakh crore and 1.35 lakh jobs in the next four years.

India press fast forward

After batting collapse, Shami's fifer helps Kohli & Co retain advantage

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

AT the end of an extraordinary day where 18 wickets fell for 268 runs in 84 overs, it was India who still held a firm grip on the Centurion Test. For a moving day in Test cricket, this was quite extraordinary. With one full day lost to rain and the forecast not looking good for Day 5, for India to force a result, a lot depended on how the events unfolded on Day Three.

It didn't start well for India by any means. If their plan was to bat once and big, it failed spectacularly. When South Africa pacer Lungi Ngidi said at the end of Day 1 it would be good to restrict India below 350, it looked far-fetched. Instead, he showed it is possible with help from the Indian batting line-up which undid all the hard work the top-order had done. From 272-3, they collapsed to 327 all out inside the first session. For a side that continues to stick to the game plan of playing just six batters, such collapses frequent way too often.

Like it has happened in the past, they keep getting away with it thanks to a bowling unit that is more than willing to compensate. With the inexperienced Proteas attack getting rewards in the morning session without needing to do much, the challenge was much bigger for the hosts' batters against this Indian attack, which relentlessly applies pressure.

And even though they were without Jasprit Bumrah, who needed medical attention after twisting his ankle soon after removing Dean Elgar, Mohammed Shami, Mohammed Siraj and Shardul Thakur ensured there was no escape for the hosts. While 327 didn't look like a big total, India needed a strong show with the ball and it was Shami who led the charge.

By bowling line and lengths what he termed "are not rocket science in Test cricket" he was always going to be a threat on this pitch with his seam movement and his ability to force batters play.

Thanks to his wrist position which makes it look ridiculously easy for him to move it either ways, he was constantly testing both the edges, leaving batters squared-up. There is a reason he gets called 'second innings Shami'. Out of his six five-wicket hauls, four have come in the third and fourth innings of a Test (four in the second innings of the team), which shows how he uses pitches that deteriorate, ones with uneven bounce to good use.

Centurion on Day Three resembled one such. Keegan Petersen, Aiden Markram lost their stumps to Shami and soon, Siraj joined the party, removing Rassie van der Dussen. Quinton de Kock and Temba Bavuma with a 72-run stand for the fifth wicket steadied South Africa a bit. But, once De Kock perished, it only got harder for the hosts before they eventually folded for 197, with Shami picking up his first five-wicket haul in the second innings of a Test. There was still enough time for Marco Jansen to remove Mayank Agarwal, but it was India's day all the way.

"The environment that they're coming from is not readying them well enough for Test cricket. It's a very difficult place. If you're not ready... it makes it very difficult to improve.

Joe Root on domestic competitions in England

It has been over ten years since England won a Test match on Australian soil. To put into context, Andrew Strauss was the skipper, leading them to a 3-1 victory and it was Paul Collingwood's last Test series.

117 68 is the lowest total for England in Australia in 117 years. The last time they were all out for a lesser total (61) was in 1904. Australia's first-innings total of 267 was also the lowest to win a men's Test by an innings this century.

Sindhu to be selective with events in 2022

MARTIN JOSEPH @ Kochi

FOR PV Sindhu, while the immediate focus is on the India Open, which is starting from January 11, the Olympic medallist wants to be selective of the tournaments she wants to compete in the upcoming year.

With the Asian Games and Commonwealth Games also due to be held this year, Sindhu wants to focus on her fitness and sharpen her skill sets as the women's singles category is an ultra-competitive field.

"We have continuous tournaments, and I will definitely pick and choose and make sure that I am a 100 per cent fit to play the tournament," said Sindhu during a promotional event in Kochi on Tuesday.

"I will discuss this with my coach and my team and accordingly. I will make sure to train harder and learn new skills and strokes. It will be tough to decide right now. We'll make sure to look at which tournaments to play."

The 26-year-old admitted that it was important not to drop the intensity even in training with just weeks left for the India Open that will mark the start of a busy year. "It's gonna be a busy schedule with Commonwealth and Asian Games. So, definitely trying out and working on my skill because it is very important in the women's singles; almost all the top ten women are of the same standards. EXFILE • COVID

THE MYSTERY OF LONG COVID

Many people with Covid-19 suffer from debilitating side-effects for months after their infection in what is known as long Covid. While the reason has remained unclear until now, a new study could help solve the mystery

THE CLAIM

Researchers from the US National Institutes of Health (NIH) claim the virus can spread to the heart and brain within days, and survive in organs for months

THE SAMPLE

In their study, currently under review for publication in Nature, the researchers studied tissues taken during autopsies of 44 patients who had died of Covid

THE FINDING

They found evidence that the virus had spread well beyond the respiratory tract, and was present in several other organs, including the heart and brain, as much as 230 days after infection

THE SPECULATION

While the reason for this remains unclear, the researchers suggest that non-respiratory organs may have less efficient immune responses to the virus

- Covid-19 is described as a short-term illness caused by infection with the novel SARS-CoV-2 coronavirus. Public health officials tend to say people recover within two weeks or so
- But it's become increasingly clear that this is not the case for everyone, and that the two-week period is only the 'acute illness' phase
- The North Bristol NHS Trust's Discover project, which is studying the longer-term effects of coronavirus, carried out a study:

110	12	74%
Patients	The number of weeks the checkups were given	Had at least one persistent symptom
3-month Check up

33

A patient was reported to having suffered the symptoms for over 33 weeks after the onset of disease

THE SYMPTOMS

Excessive fatigue 39%	Chest pain 13%	Symptoms can begin between two and 14 days. A study shows the median time for symptoms to show up is about five days. That is why the CDC uses the 14-day quarantine period for people following exposure
Breathlessness 39%	Loss of smell 12%
Insomnia 24%	Cough 12%
Muscle pain 23%	All suffered fever and joint pain

- Other long term symptoms that have been reported by Covid-19 survivors, both suspected and confirmed, include hearing problems, brain fog, memory loss, lack of concentration, mental health problems and hair loss

4 SYNDROMES

Data from the King's College London symptom tracking app shows that up to 5,00,000 people in the UK are currently suffering from the long-term effects of Covid-19

- In October, scientists claimed long Covid could actually be split into four different syndromes:

1. Post intensive care syndrome
2. Post viral fatigue syndrome
3. Permanent organ damage
4. Long term Covid syndrome

Alibaba arm-twisted into chip making?

TECH

BEIJING: To help make China a self-reliant "technology superpower," the ruling Communist Party is pushing the world's biggest e-commerce company to take on the tricky, expensive business of designing its own processor chips — a business unlike anything Alibaba Group has done before.

Its 3-year-old chip unit, T-Head, unveiled its third processor in October, the Yitian 710 for Alibaba's cloud computing business. Alibaba says for now, it has no plans to sell the chip to outsiders.

Other rookie chip developers including Tencent, a games and social media giant, and smartphone brand Xiaomi are pledging billions of dollars in line with official plans to create computing, clean energy and other technology that can build China's wealth and global influence.

Processor chips play an increasingly critical role in products from smartphones and cars to medical devices and home appliances. Shortages due to the coronavirus pandemic are disrupting global manufacturing and adding to worries about supplies.

Chips are a top priority in the ruling Communist Party's marathon campaign to end China's reliance on technology from the US, Japan and other suppliers Beijing sees as potential economic and strategic rivals. If it succeeds, business and political leaders warn that might slow down innovation, disrupt global trade and make the world poorer.

"Self-reliance is the foundation for the Chinese nation," President Xi Jinping said in a speech released in March. He called for China to become a "technology superpower" to safeguard "national economic security." "We must strive to become the world's main center of science and the high ground of innovation," Xi said.

Beijing might be chasing a costly disappointment. Even with huge official investments, businesspeople and analysts say chipmakers and other companies will struggle to compete if they detach from global suppliers of advanced components and technology — a goal no other country is pursuing.

"It's hard to imagine any one country rebuilding all of that and having the best technology," said Peter Hanbury, who follows the industry for Bain & Co. Beijing's campaign is adding to tension with Washington and Europe, which see China as a strategic competitor and complain it steals technology. They limit access to tools needed to improve its industries.

If the world were to decouple, or split into markets with incompatible standards and products, U.S.- or European-made parts might not work in Chinese computers or cars. Smartphone makers who have a single dominant global operating system and two network standards might need to make unique versions for different markets. That could slow down development.

Washington and Beijing need to "avoid that the world becomes separated," U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres told The Associated Press in September. China's factories assemble the world's smartphones and tablet computers but need components from the US, Europe, Japan, Taiwan and South Korea. Chips are China's biggest import, ahead of oil, at over $300 billion last year.

WHO says Omicron set to overwhelm hosps

The warning comes on a day the US halved the isolation period for asymptomatic cases to reduce disruptions

COVID

BERLIN: The WHO warned on Tuesday that the Omicron variant could lead to overwhelmed healthcare systems even though early studies suggest it leads to milder disease, as China and Germany brought back tough restrictions to stamp out new infection surges. China put hundreds of thousands more people under lockdown, while infections hit new highs in multiple US states and European countries.

The US has halved the isolation period for asymptomatic cases to try and blunt the disruption, while France has ordered firms to have employees work from home at least three days a week.

Contact restrictions were in place in Germany for the second year in a row heading into the New Year, as Europe's biggest economy shuttered nightclubs and forced sports competitions behind closed doors.

Despite facing a much smaller outbreak compared with global virus hotspots, China has not relaxed its "zero Covid" strategy, imposing stay-at-home orders in many parts of the city of Yan'an.

The hundreds of thousands of affected residents there joined the 13 million people in the city of Xi'an, who entered a sixth day of home confinement as China battled its highest daily case numbers in 21 months.

Many Xi'an residents have similarly complained on social media about the restrictions, which include a ban on driving and only one member of a household permitted to go outside for groceries every three days. This lockdown is the most sweeping in China since the similarly-sized city Wuhan was cut off from the world in the early days of the pandemic.

The surges in many countries have been propelled by the highly transmissible Omicron variant.

The WHO warned against complacency even though preliminary findings suggest that Omicron could lead to milder disease. "A rapid growth of Omicron... even if combined with a slightly milder disease, will still result in large numbers of hospitalisations, particularly amongst unvaccinated groups, and cause widespread disruption to health systems and other critical services," warned WHO.

Diggers find evidence of giant tsunami of yore

HISTORY

THE remains of a young man and a dog who were killed by a tsunami triggered by the eruption of the Thera volcano 3,600 years ago have been unearthed in Turkey. Archaeologists found the pair of skeletons during excavations at Çesme-Baglararası, a Late Bronze Age site near Çesme Bay, on Turkey's western coastline. Despite the eruption of Thera being one of the largest natural disasters in recorded history, this is the first time remains of victims have been unearthed.

Moreover, the presence of the tsunami deposits at Çesme-Baglararası show that large and destructive waves did arrive in the northern Aegean after Thera went up. Previously, based on the evidence available, it had been assumed that this area of the Mediterranean only received ash fallout from the eruption of Thera.

Instead, it now appears that the Çesme Bay area was struck by a sequence of tsunamis, devastating local settlements and leading to rescue efforts.

Thera — now a caldera at the centre of the Greek island of Santorini — is famous for how its tsunamis are thought to have ended the Minoan civilisation on nearby Crete.

Based on radiocarbon dating of the tsunami deposits at Çesme-Baglararası, the team believe that the volcano's eruption occurred no earlier than 1612 BC. The study was undertaken by archaeologist Vasıf Sahoglu of the University of Ankara and his colleagues. Amid stratified sediments at the Çesme-Baglararası site, the researchers found the remains of damaged walls — once part of a fortification of some kind — alongside layers of rubble and chaotic sediments characteristic of tsunami deposits. Within these were two layers of volcanic ash, the second thicker than the first, and a bone-rich layer containing charcoal and other charred remains. According to the team, the deposits represent four consecutive tsunami inundations.

Traces of misshapen pits dug into the tsunami sediments at various places across the Çesme-Baglararası site represent, the researchers believe, an 'effort to retrieve victims from the tsunami debris.'

Israel's trial run on 4th shot efficacy

VACCINE

TEL AVIV: An Israeli hospital launched a clinical trial on Monday on the impact of a fourth shot of the Pfizer-BioNTech vaccine, as the health ministry weighs a national fourth jab rollout.

The study being conducted by Sheba Medical Centre involves 150 volunteers from the hospital's staff, who are at least four months removed from their third vaccine shot and have signs of waning antibodies. Director of the Infectious Disease Epidemiology Unit at Sheba, Gili Regev-Yochay, said the study would assess the potential antibody boost from a fourth shot, the existence of adverse effects and whether an additional booster reduces the risk of infection. Participants will be monitored for six months. Israeli health ministry spokeswoman Gal Rotem Golan told AFP that the ministry had approved the trial to "check the efficacy" of the fourth shot.

Dubai World Fair crippled by surge in cases

COVID

DUBAI: The multibillion-dollar world's fair in Dubai has warned that some venues on site may shut down as coronavirus cases rapidly rise in the United Arab Emirates.

Dubai's Expo 2020 said that virus outbreaks among staff may force some parts of the fair to "close temporarily for deep cleaning and sanitization," without elaborating on the scope of the infections.

The UAE's daily virus caseload has skyrocketed by a multiple of 37 in just the last three weeks after the arrival of the omicron variant.

The vague statement from Dubai's government-run media office on Monday underscores the daunting challenges of hosting among the world's first major in-person events amid a still-raging pandemic.

No entry into Finland without negative test

Finland announced on Tuesday it would block entry for foreign travellers who have not been vaccinated against Covid-19, as it steps up its fight against the highly mutated Omicron variant. Only foreign travellers with a negative test who can prove full vaccination will now be allowed. An official said unvaccinated foreigners would be turned away unless they were on a list of exceptions that includes Finland residents, essential workers and diplomats. The measure also affects EU nationals

France to order firms to impose WFH module

France will order companies to impose at least three work-from-home days a week for employees whenever possible to stem a fifth wave of Covid infections, Prime Minister Jean Castex said Monday. The new measure, which will be in place for at least three weeks, is one of several announced after a crisis cabinet meeting on Omicron. The meeting came after France reported on Saturday over 1,00,000 cases, a record since the pandemic erupted two years ago

ARCHAEOLOGY

Egypt 'digitally unwraps' mummy of Pharaoh Amenhotep I from 3,500 years ago

HISTORY

CAIRO: In what is less of a Christmas present and more of a macabre past, the mummified remains of the Egyptian Pharaoh Amenhotep I have been digitally 'unwrapped'.

Amenhotep I — the second ruler of Egypt's 18th Dynasty — is thought to have died around 1506–1504 BCE, at which point he was painstakingly preserved. Unlike all the other royal mummies unearthed in the 19th and 20th centuries, that of Amenhotep I has never been unwrapped by modern Egyptologists.

This is not in fear of a curse, but because the specimen is so beautifully preserved — decorated with floral garlands and an exquisite facemask inset with precious stones

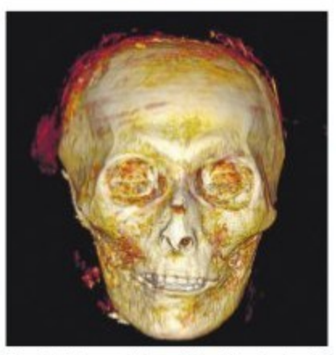
University of Cairo-led experts, however, were able to use computed tomography (CT) scans to create 3D reconstructions of the man underneath the bandages. They found that the beloved pharaoh was 35 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and circumcised when he died some three millennia ago.

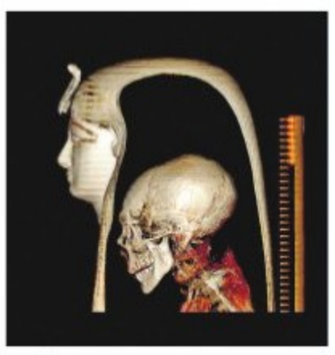
This is not the first time Amenhotep I has been 'opened', however — he was actually unwrapped, restored and reburied in the 11th century BCE by 21st dynasty priests.

They reburied him at Deir el-Bahari in southern Egypt, where he was discovered along with a number of other restored royal mummies in 1881.

"The fact that Amenhotep I's mummy had never been unwrapped in modern times gave us a unique opportunity," explained paper author and radiologist Sahar Saleem of Cairo University and the Egyptian Mummy Project. It allowed the team, he added,' not just to study how he had originally been mummified and buried, but also how he had been treated and reburied twice, centuries after his death, by High Priests of Amun.

"By digitally unwrapping of the mummy and "peeling off" its virtual layers — the facemask, the bandages, and the mummy itself — we could study this well-preserved pharaoh in unprecedented detail.





The digital rendition of the face behind the mask | AFP

"We show that Amenhotep I was approximately 35 years old when he died. He was approximately 169cm [5'7"] tall, circumcised and had good teeth. Within his wrappings, he wore 30 amulets and a unique golden girdle with gold beads," Professor Saleem continued.

"Amenhotep I seems to have physically resembled his father — he had a narrow chin, a small narrow nose, curly hair and mildly protruding upper teeth. We couldn't find any wounds or disfigurement due to disease to justify the cause of death, except numerous mutilations post mortem, presumably by grave robbers after his first burial. His entrails had been removed by the first mummifiers, but not his brain or heart."

Records in the form of hieroglyphic writings have indicated that its was common during the later 21st dynasty for priests to restore and re-bury mummies from earlier dynasties in order to repair the damage done to them by grave robbers.

Professor Saleem and her Egyptologist colleague Zahi Hawass of Antiquities of Egypt, however, had speculated that these 11th century BCE priests had an ulterior motive in opening centuries old mummies — to re-use royal burial equipment. However, their latest findings seem to counter that hypothesis. "We show that — at least for Amenhotep I — the priests of the 21st dynasty lovingly repaired the injuries inflicted by the tomb robbers," said Professor Saleem.

DAY'S DIARY

A death in the wild

A 55-year-old Sumatran orangutan, thought to be the world's oldest in captivity or in the wild, died at a zoo in the US on this day in 2007

CAUSE OF DEATH

Nonja, was brought to Miami from a zoo in Holland in 1983 and been residing at the Miami Metro Zoo since 1983. Experts said a brain tumour or aneurysm was the likely cause of death

THE SPECIES

The Sumatran orangutan is a critically endangered species of great ape. They can be distinguished by their lighter orange-coloured hair and long facial hair

CURRENT POPULATION

There are around 14,000 Sumatran orangutans in the world, but mostly found only north of the island of Sumatra in Indonesia

'NOBODY HAD FAITH IN US WHEN WE LEFT FOR ENGLAND'

Former cricketer Roger Binny speaks to CE about the '83 World Cup, the struggles the team went through and why he was teary-eyed upon watching the film which relives the country's epic triumph

SANATH PRASAD

AFTER watching the premiere show of 83 in Mumbai recently, former cricketer and all-rounder Roger Binny walked out with wet eyes. Not just because the film --- directed by Kabir Khan, starring Ranveer Singh, Deepika Padukone among others – presented itself as an emotional piece, but it drew Binny back to 1983, a year filled with struggles, team spirit, fun and incidents that created history.

Binny, the current president of Karnataka State Cricket Association (KSCA), believes that 83 is a story of the 'underdogs'. Not that it was deprived of talent, but they qualified for the World Cup, after defeating a country called 'East Africa'. "Nobody had any faith in us when we left for England. At that point in time, nobody was bothered about India and its performance. However, after the first game against the West Indies, the tone of the people started changing. That is where the spirit took off and fans in England cheered us," says Binny, who was the highest wicket taker in the World Cup, with 18 wickets in 8 matches.

The 66-year-old explains that dressing room conversations before a match were just 'sweet and short'. "We did not have long and laborious conversations. Because everyone knew their purpose. Moreover, we did not have any material or footage back then to assess the weakness of the batsman. It all depended on our past experiences. For example, you don't bowl a short ball to the Windies," says Binny, who also adds that he hardly coached Nishant Dahiya, who essays the role of Binny in the movie 83.

A still from 83

Nishant Dahiya

"I think Sandhu (Balwinder Sandhu) handled the actor very well. They borrowed references from the past footage and replicated it as is. All of us shared our stories with the makers, and I think the young kids can learn the importance of not giving up and maintaining a strong team spirit," says Binny.

The 1983 World Cup was not just about victory. Binny says that a couple of losses in between made the team stronger. "We lost two games during the tournament and it was a good sign because it prevented us from being overconfident. The same spirit then helped us bounce back to the game," says Binny, who also adds the remuneration was quite low back then. "I remember we were paid just ₹25 or ₹50 for a game. We did not have laundry facilities and used to wash our own clothes and clean our shoes all by ourselves. The film emulates the struggles and sentiments all of us went through," says Binny adding, "Dismissing Viv Richards and Clive Lloyd in Manchester is something I will always remember."

Intimate gatherings is the buzzword among Bengalureans who are opting for house parties this New Year, thanks to night curfew acting as party pooper

Celebrations, corona and curfew

MONIKA MONALISA

COME December, and everyone's discussing New Year plans. But this year, once again, Covid is playing spoilsport. The imposition of the night curfew due to the rise in Omicron cases has left many party-goers disappointed. While some are opting for intimate home gatherings, others are packing their bags and leaving town.

No prizes for guessing the popular favourite spot. Model Maanya Girish, who is currently in Goa with friends, says it turned out to be a breath of fresh air for her gang. "This place is something else, almost like it never sleeps. We were partying till 4 am on Tuesday and are all set to bring in the New Year with a bang," says Girish, who also wanted to take a break before work kicks in. "With so many curbs imposed, we felt the need to get away from Bengaluru. Thankfully, there are no restrictions so far here," adds Girish.

With the Covid scare looming large, travel is also turning out to be a great escape for people to avoid crowds. Just what Abhisar Mohapatra, a software engineer, did. "This New Year, my wife and I wanted to avoid crowded places. So we did an impromptu road trip to Fort Kochi and then to Munnar. Though it was unplanned, we did some basic research and discovered the place by foot," says Mohapatra, who is currently in Munnar.

Not everyone is bitten by the travel bug. Many are opting for house parties to spend some 'quality time' with their loved ones. For example, photographer Rohit Sarcar, is planning to cook a grand meal for his friends. "I just want to be with my close friends on this day rather than step out. We want to play board games with his friends and chill," he says.

Future of Fashion

COMFORT, community, consciousness and communication, mostly through social media , is what drives Gen Z (the generation born between 1995 and 2005), our youngest creatives of today. Spending almost every waking hour online, in their universe comfort rules – think sweatshirts, tees, transseasonal / gender neutral clothing, luxury streetwear, athleisure and sneakers. Local brands, sustainable labels and ethical practices hold value for them, as does anything deemed individualistic and unique.

Three Gen Z designers from namma ooru believe that the millennials take style inspiration not from runways or magazines but from Instagram and Pinterest. They tell us how fashion and luxury to them means a tool to assist in expressing their true self.

"I consider my style as androgynous," says Vir Naidu, breaking the stigma of traditional male and female clothing, adding that his biggest creative influence has been his mother, Ila Naidu, who always serves some serious style swag. Echoes Vir, "She has always encouraged me to express myself fully, and pushes the limits of my style as well as design." Being a part of Gen Z, Vir finds that a large part of their consumption is dictated by social media trends. "We want to wear what's trendy, which causes many of us to consume fast fashion. Fast fashion is affordable but is exploitative." As creative head for young brand Three Eleven (3xi), he adds, "We wanted to create a brand that provides Gen Z with the ability to consume consciously while looking stylish doing it". The brand employs local artisans with a made-to-measure business model that focuses on genderless clothing that is eco-conscious!

Crossback knit by Akiva

Vir Naidu

The market for sustainable athleisure wear was in high demand due to increased hours of spending indoors during the-lockdowns. With this, the demand for a stylish comfort wear brand Cava was created by siblings Ria and Shreya Mittal. The sisters describe Gen Z as those who are experimental, conscious and for whom comfort cool is key to their style. They believe the athleisure trend is here to stay. Being part of the new generation of designers, they see the future of fashion to be more accepting of streetwear into high fashion and technology integrated fashion with sustainability at its core .

"Gen Z shopper is someone looking for high-quality fashion at affordable prices," says Saniya Khanna, founder of knitwear brand Akiva. Having grown up with parents in the industry, fashion has always been an integral part to her. "At Akiva, we have three main mottos- to revolutionise the way a consumer perceives knitwear, to ensure inclusivity, and to create versatility," adds Saniya. With the growth of online styling videos, she believes that this generation responds more greatly to visual stimuli. Therefore multiple ways of styling a garment will become important in the designing process of the future.

Emerging as the most sustainable generation, there is an acute sense of confidence in Gen Z compared to the millennials. Always with an aim to bring about positive changes, they have already made significant advancements within the fashion industry in terms of inclusivity, diversity, and sustainability.

BOOK DEALS

There is a whole list of books that you can look forward to in 2022. Here are a few picks for the year ahead

MONIKA MONALISA

THE year 2021 turned out to be remarkable for several authors, irrespective of whether they were established or making their debut. In 2021, we saw Chitra Banerjee Divakaruni's historical fiction The Last Queen, an account of Maharani Jindan Kaur's journey; JCB shortlisted Name, Place, Animal, Thing by bureaucrat-author Daribha Lyndem, which came from her experiences while growing up in Shillong; and The Illuminated by Anindita Ghose, which explored the changing contours of a mother-daughter relationship.

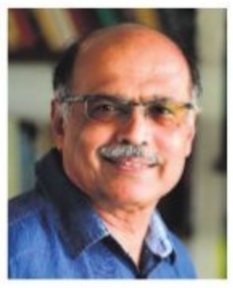
While the list of books that helped us sail through this year could go on, there is a vast range that 2022 has to offer. Here are a few picks:

REBELS AGAINST THE RAJ, RAMCHANDRA GUHA (PENGUIN RANDOM HOUSE)

History buffs will have a delightful start to the year with historian Ramchandra Guha's first book of 2022 all set to release in January. The book will tell the story of seven foreign rebels who fought for India's freedom from imperial rule. Of the seven — four men, three women — four were British, two American and one Irish.

EVERYTHING THE LIGHT TOUCHES, JANICE PARIAT (HARPER COLLINS)

This novel is an ambitious, elegant, multi-layered work that interweaves a quartet of journeys across continents and centuries. The book brings many travellers: Shai, a young Indian woman, lost and straying, who journeys to India's northeast and rediscovers the area through her encounters with indigenous communities. Evelyn, an Edwardian science student at Cambridge. Linnaeus, botanist, taxonomist. Goethe, who travels through Italy in the 1780s, formulating his ideas for The Metamorphosis of Plants. Set to be out in October 2022, Pariat's book will make you think of a new world.



INDIA BETWIST AND BETWEEN, CAPTAIN G R GOPINATH (HARPER COLLINS)

In India Betwist and Between, Captain Gopinath's essays capture the length and breadth of the issues that India addresses as it navigates its way into a new growth phase. Covering a wide variety of topics from business to politics, governance, aviation, society, and enterprise, the book presents a compelling and comprehensive picture of an India which is reshaping every minute.

YET-TO-BE-TITLED BOOK, BARKHA DUTT (JUGGERNAUT)

Still in its initial stage, this book will be an account of how the pandemic has affected individuals. The senior journalist tweeted, "Two years of reporting Covid distilled finally into 66,285 words. Was emotionally overwhelmed in the writing of this book because of all the grief it made me confront . It's finally done .. and I am so relieved. Thank you @Chikisarkar for your patience. (sic)". The release date is yet to be announced, but the book surely captures an emotional ride which many can relate to.

THE ANATOMY OF LOSS, ARJUN RAJ GAIND (BLOOMSBURY)

The book is a deeply personal narrative. It recounts the effect of Operation Blue Star and the assassination of Indira Gandhi on Punjab and the Sikh diaspora. It is the story of Himmat, who, during the 1984 Sikh riots, witnesses an act of cowardice by his grandfather so unforgivable that it leaves him permanently estranged. Thirty years later, Himmat, now living in London, is forced to return to India due to his grandfather's illness. He finally begins a journey towards finding redemption and healing the grim legacy of guilt and hatred left behind by Blue Star and its aftermath.

'THEY DIDN'T UNDERSTAND MY GRIEF'

I was born during the India-Pakistan war in 1971. In Amritsar, you always had this constant rebirth of the city, because it is right on the border of India and Pakistan. But when I was growing up, we also had a strange unrest that was internal and as kids we never understood it fully. It was with regard to the 1984 riots.

It was called Operation Blue Star but before that, there was this kind of turmoil, which was very strange for us kids who were growing up and who loved the city so much!

There was so much closeness between me, growing up in a Hindu family, and most of my friends, who were Sikhs. And suddenly we were being told that there's a war going on and we did not understand that. It was very unsettling.

I had anxiety issues whenever I heard the news or experienced the curfew and saw the military. I was almost thirteen years old then.

We had two family friends, whom we used to call Shriman Shrimati Ji, and they were my grandparents' best friends. The period after Operation Blue Star ended was a dark part of the history of Amritsar at that time, because the military had entered the Golden Temple and they had destroyed so many parts of it. This was the first time the temple had opened to the public and they wanted people to come and do seva such as cleaning the premises.

I asked my mother, 'Can we go?' as I wanted to go and contribute. She said, 'Why don't you go with Shriman Shrimati Jibecause they are going?'

It was a painful moment for us when we went to the temple. Shrimati Ji was quite elderly, I think she was older than my grandmom. Everything was still not very clean and there were a lot of broken things lying around. Most of the time I was just holding on to her while looking around. I still remember the bullets in the walls. I don't want to think about that smell and the pain in the city, which was being torn apart. But we were still hopeful.

I remember as we entered from the main gate and were walking towards the temple, I told Shriman Shrimati Ji, 'Can we go to the langar hall?'

When we went there, we saw that tea was being served outside. I asked people what was happening, and were they serving the prasad inside? I was told that they were going to start serving from the next day.

VIKAS KHANNA

This was the first time I had entered god's home in a long time and the first time I had been told that there was no food there. That has always been something which has hurt me because you always saw those fires burning in all their glory, twenty-four hours a day, serving people. But that was a tough day for me; it scarred my childhood.

I found it hard to accept that there was no food that day and this was the first time that seva was discontinued in history!

A place that gave shelter and food to millions each and every day was today passing through a dark phase of its life. But what it symbolized was hope that everything would come back as before. I remember sitting with Shriman Shrimati Ji on a ledge and we had chai. They did not understand my grief because they had not seen me growing up there and they didn't understand why I was being so affected. They kept telling me, 'Don't worry, this is the place of the gurus. It has so many prayers and blessings that it will always come back stronger.' That has also stayed with me — whatever you're going through, if you're going to have resilience and faith, you will always come back stronger. You could be going through the darkest phase of your life, but if you have faith, you are going to overcome that.

LOOKING BACK, LOOKING AHEAD

FLYLEAF
VR FEROSE

(The author is a technologist based in Silicon Valley who is gently mad about books)

AS the year comes to an end, I have almost forgotten all the books I read at the beginning of the year. So, my favourite list has a bias because of the recency effect. I must also confess that I did not read as much as I would have loved to in 2021; there was a mid-year lull as work pressure peaked.

I ended the year reading two outstanding and well-researched books on the legacy of Indian prime ministers: HD Deve Gowda's biography Furrows in the Field by Sugata Srinivasaraju and a very critical yet objective look at Narendra Modi by Aakar Patel in Price of the Modi Years. Both books are written by seasoned journalists who have tried to put together an unbiased view of two very different prime ministers — one completely ignored and another who has mastered the art of managing the media and his own image. In many ways, it is a reflection of the state of the nation — 25 years apart! Vir Sanghvi's memoir A Rude Life is very readable, and I enjoyed going back in time to relive some of the pivotal moments in Indian history. And if there is a memoir that I would like to read, it is Amartya Sen's Home in the World.

In non-fiction, I mostly play it safe with familiar authors that I like, for example Amitav Ghosh, Dave Eggers and Mitch Albom. Albom's books are best known for their inspirational stories and so it is no surprise that I read his latest, The Stranger in the Lifeboat. The book tries to answer the question: What would we do, if after crying out for divine help, God actually appeared before us? A novel that I look forward to reading in 2022 is Hanya Yanagihara's To Paradise. The plot spans three centuries and three different versions of the American experiment. I had thoroughly enjoyed her A Little Life which was shortlisted for the 2015 Man Booker Prize for fiction.

As the year was focused on race and gender issues, I leaned in on Michael Holding's book Why We Kneel How We Rise. He wrote it after his passionate commentary on live TV during a rain-interrupted cricket match. In the book, Holding shares his own and other stories of some of the world's most iconic athletes. He delivers a powerful and inspiring message of hope and a vision for change as he takes us through history to understand the racism of today. Another book by a path-breaking feminist and an indomitable spirit whose impact has transcended even her spectacular achievements in sports is Billie Jean King's All In: An Autobiography.

My final book of the year, which I am currently reading, is Obama and Springsteen's Renegades: Born in the USA. The book goes beyond the groundbreaking podcast and explores everything from career defining moments to the growing distance between the American Dream and American reality.

I read many business books and since I took part in the research for Liz Wiseman's Impact Players I had a deeper appreciation for its insights. I would highly recommend this for team leaders and people-managers. The book answers the fundamental question why some people make an impact while others get stuck going through the motions.

Finally, I want to set a personal reading goal for 2022: read 22 books by authors I have never read before, and most of them by women.

Pandemic drives publishers to adopt newer formats

New publishing models and strategies are emerging; the publishing industry is pushing the boundaries; its heartening to see the brick-and-mortar model steadily return to the sales' mix. The pandemic was a wake-up call, for publishing is an intensive, immersive business. The worst effect of the two waves of the pandemic is tentatively behind us, and the publishing industry is upbeat as the world marches into 2022.

"Disruptions are creative in that they clear up new spaces, though they can also pile up debris and blockages," Namita Gokhale, writer, literary activist and co-director of the Jaipur Literature Festival, said recently. "We find new publishing models and strategies emerging in the course of the pandemic and the continuing endemic," Gokhale said. —IANS

TO 2021, THE YEAR THAT WAS

URBAN BOURBON
Hriday Ranjan
Writer, comedian

LET'S get the facts straight — 2021 wasn't a great year for most of us. But if one were to adopt the positive mindset of a Bollywood mother, one could argue that it was better than the year 2020 — which wreaked havoc and sorrow in everybody's lives. Compared to that, 2021 was a saner year. On Dec 31, 2020, for the first time in centuries, all of us went into the New Year without burdening ourselves with unrealistic goals and resolutions.

When you begin the New Year without resolutions, you reduce half the burden that the year places on you. This year, I placed no pressure on myself to get fitter, or smoke less, or be a better human being. I was simply glad to be alive.

In many ways, 2021 will always remain in the shadow of 2020. The United Nations probably tried to correct that, by declaring 2021 as the year of peace and trust. Since most of us were locked up at home, it was relatively peaceful — there were lesser riots and terror attacks. But 2021 witnessed a lot of distrust among people, vaccine companies, political parties and Indian cricket captains.

The year certainly brought with it some good news. India completed a billion vaccines — a fact we were reminded of in every airport, railway station, and movie theatre. Air India — after years of mismanagement, and meals seemingly cooked by irritated grandmoms — went back to the Tatas. One hopes the Maharaja finds reason to smile again, as do the stewards, who resemble strict Mathematics teachers. The farmers' protest got called off when the government agreed to their conditions. But some things remained the same. Actors like Akshay Kumar continued to act opposite actresses old enough to be their daughters' college juniors. India lost another World Cup campaign despite all of BCCI's riches. Aryan Khan had a dismal year — locked up for 28 days on suspicion of possessing weed with the intention to sell. This, even though his dad is worth 5,500 crores, and could plant a new strain of cannabis on the moon if he so wished!

Personally, 2021 was a learning experience for me. 2020 put a halt to most of my sources of income. But in 2021, I was glad to be doing the things I considered my everyday life — going up on stage to perform standup comedy, reviewing films, and meeting friends over beers and exaggerated stories. I remember writing columns on the experience of performing in dingy bars to drunk strangers. This year, I am grateful that I get to entertain people who have come to grab a few beers and some laughs.

As this week brings an end to a crazy two years, I realise that the only constant for me was writing this newspaper column. It helped me document my experience of the pandemic. It acted as my little window to the world — to comment on issues that are far beyond my understanding. To pen down my thoughts and have them read by strangers sipping on coffee on a Wednesday morning. It was the only thing that remained unchanged through lockdowns, vaccines, and Covid scares. What a blessing!

As the year draws to a close, I would like to thank you, dear reader — for preserving the tradition of reading humour columns in a newspaper. And here's hoping 2022 is a much better year for all of you. The State Government has declared a ban on New Year events, and it is another chance to save some money, and time from a hangover! Happy New Year!

'GLAD THAT DIRECTORS WANT TO SEE ME IN DIFFERENT ROLES'

Diganth

Diganth, along with debutant director Nagaraj Bethur and heroine Kavitha Gowda, speaks to CE about their upcoming suspense thriller Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu

A SHARADHAA

DIGANTH celebrated his birthday on Tuesday, and his fans wished him 'Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu', which means Happy Birthday in Kannada. Incidentally, it is also the title of the actor's upcoming film, which is slated to release on December 31. CE caught up with the actor, who spoke in detail about the suspense thriller. "I have been working on Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu for two years now. Each time a poster of the film was released, people would wish me thinking it was my birthday, and I kept clarifying to them that it is the film's title. I don't mind these wishes even post the release," he chuckles.

Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu is a suspense thriller about a murder at a birthday party. Diganth, who is often seen in rom-com subjects, wanted to break out the mold, and he is glad it is happening with this film. "This is a good genre to add to my profile. This will also be new to my fans. One will know why the director chose me for the role while watching the film," Diganth says and adds that the film has him playing a serious character in a comical situation.

Diganth is glad that directors are wanting to cast him in different genres and roles. "There has been an effort from my end too, and I am picking up characters that require me to perform. And one such film is Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu. There's a variety of roles on my platter, which will be seen in my other upcoming films like Gaalipata 2, MariGold, and Thimmaya and Thimmayya," says Diganth. "With Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu and other upcoming films, I want to prove to them that I can do characters other than being a lover-boy. I am confident it will be accepted," he says. Talking about debutant director Nagaraj Bethur, he says, "I enjoy working with newcomers and fresh talents, as they come with excitement. I've seen them putting in a lot of creativity right in their first film. Nagaraj also came across as a talented guy with the kind of subject he wanted to explore. I gave a green signal to the first script he narrated me," he says. Produced by Crystaal Paark Cinemas, Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu, will be released in Kannada in theatres. On other hand, it will be released in multiple languages on an OTT platform. "The production house, who want to prevent piracy, have taken the decision of releasing the Kannada version in theatres and the other language versions on OTT," he says.

Kavitha Gowda

'I don't differentiate between TV and cinema'

Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu has her sharing screen space with actor Diganth for the first time. Talking about the film, she says, "I was the last one to be added to the cast of Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu. I was surprised and happy to be accepted. According to her, this is a film, which has importance to both hero and heroine. It is a story narrated through various characters," Kavitha tells us.

Kavitha Gowda is a popular dancer and a known face on the small screen, who has now made a mark in cinema. Talking about the difference in the medium, she says, "I don't differentiate between TV and cinema. Both are beautiful journeys. However, the characters I chose for films are in contrast to what I played in serials, and one such example is Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu. Also, a character we play in a film might become a watershed moment in our career. I am an actor and want to explore all kinds of roles. Even a character of negative traits will be of interest to me, " she says.

'Diganth comes across as a potential actor'

Nagaraj Bethur

Nagaraj Bethru, who is making his directorial debut with Huttu Habbada Subhashayagalu, says, "I wanted to kickstart my journey with a suspense thriller. It was a small thought, which shaped to become a big picture. I was looking for a good actor and Diganth came to my mind. I have been following him for a long time and realised that he has only been part of rom-com. For me, he comes across as a potential actor and wondered why filmmakers are not trying to fit him in other characters. So, I decided to take that step. Gladly, Diganth too responded well," he says.
